THE "TITANIC" DISASTER.

Some terrible disasters at sea are fresh in our memory. The rate of the "Delhi" and the "Decans" will at once be recalled, but the greatest catastrophe of all is that which has just sefallen the White Star liner, "Titanie," which dered in mid-Atlantic as a result of a collision with an iceberg. While Providentially a large number of souls have been saved, there is only too much reason to tear that the loss of life must be very considerable. We devoutly hope that it will turn out to be otherwise, but at all vents the great work of manne, so far as it has complished, is a triumph for the marvellous of wireless telegraphy. Without its ful, its invaluable aid one could but under at the thought of what the loss of life ould have been, or in other words how manyparative few, perhaps—would have escaped disaster. The "Titanio" was the largest el afloat, having a tomage of 46,382, or 1,004 sore than her sister ship, the "Olympic." She not considerably more than a million of money o fit out, and it is a striking circumstance that he was on her maiden voyage to New York, saving left Southampton on Wednesday with sengers. This number was incress he calls at Cherbourg and Queenstown, and after she had left the latter port the total number on board was as follows:—First class, 350; second class, 305; third class, 800, while e crew and stewards were represented by 903, a grand total of 2,358. In addition she carried 418 sacks of mails. All went on well til night, when with all the horror and collided with an iceberg, and it would from reports received that many of these s to the mariner have been obstructing the vessels have had a dangerous experience off them. As to the "Titanic," the details of the collision are necessarily meagre. Wireless was at once sent out from the ill-lated ship that she was inking by the bead, and calling for immediate 200 miles away. Several steamer with all aneed to the aid of the but what the loss of life is cannot as yet be ascertained. To-day's telegram hat the "Carpathia" is en route for York with 968 passengers, mostly womer children. Two hundred of the prew hope in the statement " loss of life, if n," and further, that others of the may have a large number of the passengers as crew in safe keeping also. We have got, of cours but to hope for the best, though, it must be admitted, the news, fragmentary—as it is, is so is gloomy, and at best uncertain. So far as the great thip herself is concerued, every effort to get to Halifax or to beach her at Cape Race failed nambe sank at 2.30, American time, yesterda

THEATRE ROYAL

"A Message from Mars" has been before the public in many parts of the world for thirtsen years, and if this hold it has still retained on years, and if this hold it has still retained on for giving it an extended existence, then one may predict it will run for many years to come. It has been seen in Limerick before, and will be again presented at the Theatre Royal for the three nights of this week, commencing Thursday 18th April, by Messar F. Leslie Morston, and Guyton Heath's splendid Company. At this stage of its rem a kable carser, there is no necessity to give any descriptive particulars of the drams which should attract crowded houses. The Company is in Ireland for three weeks only, carrying the full effects from the Prince of Wates Theatre, London, visiting Our, Lissenick, and the Gaisty Theatre, Dublin, next week.
