It is calculated that, in Scotland, the revenue loses nearly £300,000 by illicit distillation, and fully as many human beings are annually sacrificed by the Excise laws on legal distillation, since it forces the mauufacturers to make a liquid poison, instead of a wholesome spirit. What encourages the illicit whiskey but its superiority to the hot fiery spirit that is made against the first principles of science, but according to law.

On Saturday se'night, a row boat, with seven men and a woman, returning from Galway Quay to Ardfry, was upset between Kilcolgan Point and the latter place, and every person on board perished. At low water next day, the boat was found, with the remains of one of the men to her, much mangled. The others, we understand, have not been yet discovered.
