vague, unfounded assertions, advanced English House of Peers, by a noble Earl, lman too (Lord H——gh) respec-his kingdom, stand in need of no other tion than their own inconsistency. Init might be expected from his Lordship's sift to this country, that he should have ed little better knowledge of its politics.

ordship as manly as liberally averted, two thirds of the people of this country, affected to a French Government!" and reat were his fears, lest they should take antage of our predilection, that his only founded fears! it is hard to distinguish ether his Lordship's candour or veracity is t conspicuous. Let the first be estimated by amor patriæ; as to the latter, it is notori-that fire and water, light and shade, or two opposites in nature, are not more averse, n the politics of a Gaul and Hibernian!

Lord H——gh's assertion, that an ion would be the best means for preserving e kingdom against invasion, seems to be found-d in strange policy; rob us of our constituon—our supreme Legislature, and almost ery thing which could rouse us in the day danger, and then we will be more ready to end our country from an enemy. This is a ctrine not very easily to be understood.

Belfast, Jan. 31. With very great concern we inform the public of the death of Robert Blackwood, Esq; eldest son of Sir John Blackwood, Bart. Member in Parliament for the bor-rough of Killisheagh, which happened last Sunday night about ten o'Clock, occasioned by a fall from his horse, near the village of Comber, on his return from this town to Killisheagh, in company with his brother and a couple of servants.—We are informed he had rode on sa-ther before his brother and attendants, in order to get into his carriage at Comber, and when found was quite dead, the horse, from appearances, having trod violently between his shoulders after he fell.—This melancholy ac-

By a gentleman just arrived from the county of Galway, we hear that one Callnan a public nuisance, though a man of respectable family, sat down to drink last week with a sailor in a public house at Eyrecourt; the latter, after taking a few glasses said he had 50l. in his pocket for his parents, and 250 more in his agents hands. Callnan departed at night; the sailor remained till morning, and on his departure the landlord hearing him talk of money, cautioned him strongly to take care of himself; he however was a brave fellow, and said no single man should ever rob him. He had not gone three miles, when he was joined by Call-nan, the sailor complained of the cold, and wished for a dram, when Callnan drew out a pistol and demanded his money; "dams it" said the sailor, "will you rob a poor fellow that drank so much with you last night,— "only for the gang of ruffians you have at "your back, you never should rob me." Callnan being alone and fearing some persons were coming the road, looked about, when the sailor, who had his hand in his pocket, instead of drawing out his money, took out a pistol and shot Callnan dead on the spot.

Every town in England and several in Ireland, have joined in a subscription to purchase Tickets for Sir Anthony Lever's museum, which is to be sold by Lottery in London, under an act of Parliament the last week in March next. This museum is one of the largest and finest in the world; it consists of twenty thousand natural and artificial curiosities, which have been forty years collecting; such a collection must be an invaluable acquisition to the town that gets it, and to the private person who proves so fortunate, will be a princely fortune, as the price is thirty six thousand guineas. The Empress of Russia offered thirty thousand for it.

Hon. and Rev. Dean Crosbie, acknowledges the receipt of Twenty Guineas from Edmond Henry Pery, Esq; to be disposed of in charity.

The Rev. Dean Hoare, Treasurer, thankfully acknowledges the receipt of two Guineas for the County Infirmary, from a Lady unknown, thro' the hands of Mr. Andrew Watson.

The Printer acknowledges the receipt of half a guinea from an unknown Lady, to be laid out in provisions for the confined Debtors,—25 in number.
