On the night of the 23d or 25d of last month, M. MITCHELSTOWN, FEB. 12.—A most melancholy event took place yesterday morning near this town. A farmer of some respectability in the neighbourhood, whose daughter was married the previous night, invited a number of his friends, &c. to the wedding. After supper, all the young retired to a barn to dance. There was a fire in the barn as the night was cold, and after they had been dancing for some time they wished to have the fire extinguished, when one of the young men went into the dwelling house for some water, and seeing a large jug full of water, as he supposed (but it proved to be spirits) brought it into the barn and threw it on the fire. The barn immediately took fire as it had no chimney; before the door, which was locked could be opened, dreadful to relate, a number of them were burned to ashes! and such as found their way out were miserably scorched. Sixteen have been already interred, and about twice the number are despaired of; among the latter number is the bride—the bridegroom is severely scorched, but he will recover. A young gentlemen who has just come from the melancholy scene, says he never saw so dreadful a sight—men and women lying on the outside of the ruins, so dis- figured that their parents even could not recognize them!! The uncle of the young man who was married, and his daughter are among the dead. They have not got out all the bodies from under the ruins yet, but it is supposed, from every account, that about 20 persons were burned to death.

LIFE.

THE peculiar and exclusive advantage of this Establish- ment to the Public is, that they alone become entitled to the entire savings, or in plain words, the Profits which Trading Insurance Company's annually divide, amongst a few Share holders, is in this Office at the expiration of stated periods, added to the value of the Insurer's Policy, so that an Insurance of £1000, may ultimately be entitled to 13 or £1500, or even £2000, without any increase of Premium, whilst the Rates of this Office are 10 per cent lower than every other, being nearer the real probabilities of Life.

This plan has stood the test of experience, and is the ad- miration of all who are acquainted with it.

How secure and satisfactory to the Parent, who by in- vesting a small proportion of his Income, annually in this Office, not only protects those who are dear to him, from the immediate consequences of his death, but the very annual payments he is making by the operations of this plan, is increasing the value & amount of his Policy.—Another great advantage is, if the Insurer should at any time find it incon- venient to continue his annual payment, the Society will purchase his interest in the policy, or grant him a loan on it so as to enable him to continue his payment

Parents may provide for their Children by making small annual payments (at this Office), a considerable sum of money, on their attaining the age of 21 years.

FIRE.

The results of this simple and excellent plan, are that this Association (which has existed nearly 20 years) now consists of above 50,000 Members, and its conductors having been enabled, after discharging about 700 claims on the Funds, to pay back to the Insured, 50 per cent. on the amount of the premiums, to those who have been insured seven years, above 14,000 have receive dividends since March, 1804, the pe- riod of resumption is falling due every Quarter to some of the Assured.

Surplus Capitals of £180,000 are now Funded, and the annual receipts made, £80,000.
