

PROPRIETORS.

itor of the Limerick Chronicle. report of the Evidence given before the ce by Major-General Bourk, I have noticed ply to a question as to the peace of his t in which I live has been perfectly free nce; as have all the Eastern Baronies of th before and since the passing of the Act."
 ad the answer on the Parliamentary report sposed to give it credence; but there it is, bound to believe that the General has ttee under an impression that within the agisterial influence all was peace and obe-ws—that the East of the County, in short, vein of harmony and virtue. But to me, t district as well as the gallant General, it ing to find him forgetting the following which took place in his own immediate hall I ask the gallant General, was it that ggs's slated dwelling-house, in the east of the General's own neighbourhood? rned Barry's house and all his cattle at en, in the east of the county, and in the hbourhood of General Bourk? ndered Collins, of Cappamore, and bru-is body in the east—and neighbourhood of ndered Connell and mangled several of e east—and neighbourhood of the General? ndered the houses on Lord Stradbroke's ast of the county—and in the immediate of General Bourk?
 ndered the London Hibernian School-oa, in the east of the county—and imme-rhood of the General?
 ndered the cattle, fired at the Sheriff, and nder one of the dragoons, while executing writ, in the east of the county—and in the neighbourhood? ndered the Mail-Coach and took out the ases, in the east of the county—and in the hbourhood of the General? ndered Ryan, burned his body and after-d it in a bog-hole, in the east of the county General's neighbourhood? ndered Mr. Maunsell and nearly knocked cause he went to demand rent in the east of nd in the General's own neighbourhood? ndered Kennedy, at Woodroad, because cattle under a decree, in the east of the n the General's neighbourhood? are but a few of the many instances I were I convenient to the file of your he above, which I give from memory, are sive as to the correctness of the Gallant wers; but as I know the General's views, d bye I will notice, I hope that the Magisgreat County will keep a vigilant eye upon would manœuvre, and out-manœuvre them, ank, and well known exertions to keep the y attempting to impose upon distant credu-l-be astounding efficacy of his own superior ut the Magistrate I allude to has been de-before; and, if I mistake not, there is every on the part of the upright and honourable the County, that cows far from home shall ing, at their expence, longer horns than eir casual range qualify them to wear.
 I am, Sir, yours, &c.
