DEATHS.

This morning, at his residence, in Lower Glentworth-street, WILLIAM ROCHE, Esq. late M.P. for the city Limerick, and a Magistrate of the Borough, also Life Commissioner of St. Michael's, and President of the Limerick Institution. The demise of this highly respectable gentleman, whose life, for half a century, has been closely identified with the welfare of Limerick and warmly devoted to the best interests of Ireland, must elicit an expression of universal sympathy and regret from his countrymen. His intellectual endowments were of an eminent order, and derived additional lustre in public as well as private society from patriotic sentiment, refined courtesy, and genuine benevolence of heart. Mr. Roche was the first Roman Catholic gentleman in Ireland appointed to the commission of the peace for a corporate borough, and he was elected member for his native city in December, 1832, which he continued to represent in three Parliaments, with undeviating integrity, and we shall add, for the benefit of his constituents, without a compromise of honor or principle, for the period of nearly ten years. Mr. Roche took leave of public life in July, 1841; and it was a remarkable incident in his political career, that when pressed to declare himself a Repealer, upon the eve of an election, and when his return was threatened by the champions of that measure, the late Daniel O'Connell declared in Limerick that "William Roche was the only man in Ireland from whom he would not demand a pledge." The remains of this lamented gentleman will be interred in the Stacpoole vault of his family at the Cathedral of Limerick, on Monday next.
