

INDIAMAN.—A letter has been received from the late Bengal East Indiaman, of the loss of that valuable ship. It went to the gun-rooms to examine a about 25 gallons, which was suspected to be the bung-tighter in the the rapidity of the flames, that every attempt to force the bung-tighter in the progress proved ineffectual; and, notwithstanding the most zealous exertions of the ship's crew (highly meritorious), in less than an hour above 20 persons have unfortunately perished by the sinking of boats. One of the boats was Captain Newell, of the Alexander, Second Officer of the Surrey, and the shipman of the Bengal. One of the females of the Malacca, also perished on board, and was to have sailed on the island.

TRUSTEES OF IRELANDS
At 12 o'clock, a court of proprietors met, in the presence of the above establishment, at the seat of the above establishment, by which the proprietors, as not being commensurate with the value of the charter, which extended to the affairs of the institution, so as to enable them to pay the several dividends were refused. He disclaimed any suspicion of the unblemished character of those in the trust was reposed, and expressed his error existed, it could be attributed to the incident to man. He concluded by the court, until the 19th inst. for the parties concerned time to make a full and complete investigation, if they should themselves proposed by Counsellor Richard Guinness, was irregular—the constitution of the court pointed out a particular mode, by which the learned gentleman required should be obtained, if it were judged necessary or expedient by obtaining the signature of nine bank directors, and be found impressed with the same expressive of their concurrence with the proposed course. It is imperative upon the parties concerned in the present matter before a court, convened for that purpose, who might disapprove of its tenor, there was nothing in the regular proceedings to prepare them for such an attempt. The court, upon the expediency of the proposed course, but insisted, that at the establishment having pointed out the mode of obtaining the information required, it was obtained at all, by no other channel than that put from the chair, the motion was refused.

WATERGATE, JUNE 12.
Saturday evening last, at Passage, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators, this beautiful vessel (which supported the sides of the water-gate) was knocked away, the word was given to the crew, and in a few seconds the vessel was raised in acclamations. Too much praise cannot be given to the ingenious architect, Mr. Andrew Handcock, of this immense vessel, without mentioning the imperfections, made by his own consummate skill. She is in every respect to be the best built and most commodious in the British empire; and 150 persons on her deck, being no more than a compliment to the proprietors (one of the fellow citizens, Michael O'Brien, assisted by them in an undertaking, productive of such general convenience to the name of which she bears. We have had proposals to build another vessel on the river Shannon.

A letter states, that letters have been intercepted by the friends of the late, which lead them to suppose that the late was mistaken in their apprehensions, and by which it had been seen subsequent to the late, as supposed to have taken place, had any communication with the late, nothing positively can be ascertained.
