Yesterday, an inquest was held before Henry Watson Esq. Mayor, on the body of Samuel Kirchner, a Cabinet-maker, rather a decent character, who was found dead in a public house, where he had been drinking. It appeared he had a disposition to sleep, in which he was indulged without interruption, until the party were breaking up when one of them placed him on a sofa. Sometime afterwards deceased's situation was taken notice of by a servant man belonging to the house. Doctor Gentry, jun. being called in gave it as his opinion, that deceased must have been dead for about two hours previous, and that death was occasioned by intoxication.—Verdict accordingly.

This day, the Mayor held an inquest on Thomas Whelan, who, without any previous illness, died suddenly in William-street.
