

principle he was working upon was a sound one, and that principle was that the Post Office business must pay for itself and must not be subsidised by the taxpayer. If a business was worth anything it must pay for itself. To keep it alive by subsidies was like keeping a man alive upon oxygen. He believed the principle he had laid down was justifying itself. The Post Office was effecting substantial reductions in expenses, and that was the only way to reduce the charges to the public.

DEATH OF MR W. SEXTON, NENAGH

The death has taken place in Nenagh at the age of 76 years, of Mr William Sexton. Deceased was 46 years stationmaster at Oola, Co Limerick, in which position he is succeeded by his son, Mr E Sexton. His remains were removed by rail for interment at Oola. The chief mourners were—Messrs E Sexton (Oola), John Sexton (Nenagh), sons; and Miss Sexton, daughter. Deceased was very courteous in official life, and the news of his demise has occasioned much regret to all who knew him.
