deprived of this excellent Officer by his promotion to the rank of Major-General—notwithstanding his removal, he has ever proved himself a great friend and benefactor, and always appeared to take as much interest as he did when he had the command of his late regiment. The late Lord R. Manners served with the 10th Hussars during the retreat of the army to Corunna, under the late Sir John Moore, and was at the battle of Waterloo with that regt. In the furious gales which prevailed from the Southward this week, the shipping near the coast have been the principal sufferers, but in our immediate vicinity little more damage has been sustained than the partial unroofing of some poor cabins in Pennywell and Old Clare-street. The new Coonagh embankment appears to have suffered from the ravages of wind and tide, but we hope a work of such great utility may withstand the assaults of a severe winter. The vessels outward bound in the Shannon are near twenty, and rode out in comparative safety the late storm, which has blown with great fury upon the coast. On the Inland Canal Navigation the passengers and luggage boats have been delayed near four days between Dublin and Limerick.

At Cove the most severe gale remembered for some years was felt. The brig Duke of Clarence drifted foul of Fitzpatrick's Quay, and received considerable damage ; the Quay is much injured. A Revenue Cutter repairing at Scott's Quay, was obliged to scuttled, to prevent her beating to
