FANATICISM.—The annals of fanaticism can scarcely furnish any thing more ridiculous and extravagant than the following circumstance, which has lately occurred in Brighton:—A person of the name of George Savage White has, for the last few years, thought proper to assume the character of a gloomy bigot, scattering firebrands, arrows, and death, among the Christians of all denominations, except a distinguished few who had spiritual light to discern the divinity of his mission and his claims to the Apostolic office in modern times.
 Over the minds of these poor deluded creatures, he, in a short time, acquired the most absolute dominion; and a proof of this he has just given in having persuaded some of the principal of them to emigrate with him to America. Two very respectable inhabitants of that town, the first being in a most excellent line of business, and the other possessing considerable property, have been induced to quit their homes for the purpose of following this adventurer, whom they considered as the only preacher of the true Gospel in the whole world.
 A weak brother has also, under the same influence, been led to join them and they are now on the eve of departing for their trans-atlantic destination. What tends to prove beyond a question, the nature of the influence which has been employed to draw these infatuated people from their native country, and all the endearments of social life, is, the avowed fact, that White was warned in a vision of the night to leave the poor people of England to perish in their sins, for not being able, as we suppose, to discern in his heavenly countenance his credentials as the only divine instructor raised up for the service of the elect!!!
