

of the new buildings, and made a minute inspection of every department both of the quarters and stabling. After partaking of a luncheon with Colonel Elmirst and the mess of the 9th Depot Battalion, the Field-Marshal and staff returned to the station, and left by the 4.40 train for London.

POPULARITY OF THE INDIAN SERVICE.—Service in India would seem to be becoming more popular with the men of the British Army than it was formerly. On the occasion of the 52nd Regiment leaving India last month no less than 263 non-commissioned officers and men volunteered into other corps which have yet some years to remain in India.

Of all the local charities of Limerick, there is none that exceeds in usefulness "The Protestant Aid Society," moving, as it does, in its silent, unostentatious operations among the lonely and afflicted dwellings of poor Protestants, extending help and support in different shapes, through the ministry of the excellent lady visitors, and bestowing Christian sympathy on those who have few friends. The committee will lay their annual report before the public on Thursday evening, at the Orphan Hall, and we trust the result will be to stimulate to still greater liberality those who can afford to help this excellent society in its noble aims.
