Secretary of War.—Lieutenant-commanding the First Wisconsin from Irwinsville. He struck Dublin, Lawrence county, on the 13th, and followed him closely in the pine wilderness of Allensville, Colonel Harden picked one hundred and fifty picked Fourth Michigan, Harden followed South, while Pritchard had down the Ocmulgee, towards by House Creek to Irwinsville, right of the 9th. Jeff. Davis in a citizen Pritchard learned camped two miles out of the positions of his men and surprised day. Harden had camped miles, as he afterwards learned, his being too indistinct to follow at 1 o'clock a.m., and had gone but a mile when his advance was fired on at Fourth Michigan. A fight exhibiting the greatest determination elapsed before the mistake was corrected. The firing in this skirmish was the wisest received. The captors report on one of his wife's dresses, and she was closely followed by our men, she being a woman, but seeing his firing, they suspected his sex at a short one, and the rebel President to bay. He brandished a bowie knife, and signs of battle, but yielded possession of Colt's revolvers, with- out men to fire. He expressed great energy with which he was pursued, he believed our government more to hunt down women and children. to Colonel Harden, after the ex- cept that the men had better not pro- ceed "he might kill some of 'em." He left with dignity and resignation. He were making for the coast.—J. Major General.
