Casting new light on Joyce brothers

By A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

BENEDICT KIELY, the writer and broadcaster, will open the 1987 Joyce Brothers School this Friday evening, September 11, in Kilfinane Education Centre

This weekend school of lectures, outings, music sessions, etc., which is held annually, commemorates the Joyce brothers of Glenosheen, Patrick Joyce brothers of Glenosheen, Patrick W. Joyce, historian, authority on Irish placenames and collector of Irish music, and Robert Dwyer Joyce, patriot and song writer, well known for historical ballads in which one finds stirring lines like the following:

Then came the loud clangour of horse and the rattling of lances and swords,

And the gloom and the glitter of battle as we eagerly rushed through their hordes:
We dashed through the ford, horse and fool — on their rear like a whirlwind we tore,
Till their horse galloped down on their footmen, and we at their backs striking sore.

A new book, The Joyce Brothers of Glenosheen, by Mainchin Seoighe, will be launched on the first evening of will be faunched on the first evening of the school; and after that there will be a lecture by Gerard Lee, S.C., on "Robert Dwyer Joyce, a Poet of the Legends of Ireland." This lecture will not commence until after the conclu-sion of the Novena devotions in the parish church, so that local people will have an opportunity of hearing it.

There is an interesting programme on Saturday. At 10.30 a.m. there will be a lecture by Liam O Dochartaigh, M.A., Thomond College of Education, Limerick, on "Some Gleanings of Irish Folklore." The lecture will sevelore the relationship between of Irish Folklore." The lecture will explore the relationship between traditional custom and belief, and the antiquities of the Irish countryside, and will be illustrated by recordings made in County Limerick.

A botanical/archaeological/historical outing to the Galtee mountain area of a circlesk that afternoon, should at 2 o'clock that afternoon, should prove most interesting, as should the lecture at 8.30 that evening, by Maire

Robert Dwyer Joyce.

Patrick Weston Joyce.

Ní Dhuibhir, B.Mus., on "Seoda Ceoil: Some pearls from our Irish collections of Music and Song." On Sunday there will be a Mass in Irish at 11 a.m., and an aeraíocht or open-air concert in Glenosheen at 3 p.m.

The Joyce brothers were born and reared in the south-east of County Limerick, near Kilfinane.
Patrick Weston Joyce was born in Ballyorgan in 1827, but soon afterwards his family moved to nearby Gienosheen. The second Christian name Weston was the family name of his maternal grandmother. He was a native Irish speaker, his part of County Limerick being then Irish speaking.
After a very successful career as a teacher — he himself was a product of the hedgeschools — he was appointed teacher — he himself was a product of the hedgeschools — he was appointed principal of the Training College for Teachers in Dublin. He laboured with distinction in many fields. He pro-duced the first popular histories of Ireland: A Child's History of Ireland, An Outline History of Ireland, etc. He wrote A Social History of Ireland, and, in Old Celtic Romances, gave retell-ings in English translation of famous tales from Irish mythology.

To many, P. W. Joyce is best known for his great pioneering work, The Oirigin and History of Irish Names of Places. He was also one of our greatest collectors of Irish music and songs. He published four collections, containing some thousand airs. In all, he wrote 30 books, including a useful little grammar of the Irish language. He died in Robert Dwyer Joyce was born in Glenosheen in 1830. He, too, became a teacher. Later he studied medicine. He contributed poems and articles on Irish themes to various publications.

Fenianism

After he had taken his M.D. he emigrated to America. He was very sympathetic to Fenianism, and most of his poems are inbued with a strong patriotic feeling. He was the author of the well known seng, 'The Boys of Wexford.' His best known colletion is his Ballads of Irish Chivalry.

Because of failing health he returned to Ireland in 1883. He died later that year in the home of his brother, Patrick. The Dwyer in his name came from his mother's surname.
