LIMERICK LEADER.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 16 ORGANISED AND UNITED VALUE bould bester emphasize the solidarity of the National forces in Ireland and the creat to which the country approves of Mr REDWIND's present policy and leadership than the remarkable progress of the United Irish Loague during the past year. The number of branches affiliated since this time twelve months shows an increase of no fower than 31:, a circumstance which affords an illuminatmy and most significant commentary on the hildishly abound contention of those who would have us believe that the Irish Leader cannot speak for the people to day with the same authority as he could before the war broke out. The positive truth is -and hard and irrefutable facts proctain ft-that here at home as well as amonget our kith and kin byond the seas those who really count, the Americaced, responsible and representative man, heartily and unequivocally endorse the demestry asserts of the chosen spottemen of the cause of the old land. The public Stands and Councils throughout the four prorinces have given proofs of no doubtful or half hearted kind that they are unmistakeably on the side of Mr REDMOND and in complete and thorough agreement with his counsels of wisdom to those whose interests he has served so well and has so sincerely at beart. The same can be said with equal truth of the uited Irish League Branches, which have not year that has just gone by but have advanced in membership and Improved and developed in efficiency. The annual meeting of the National Directory of the Organisation was held in Dublin on Monday and the proceedings thereat were such as to give little comfort indeed to the handful of irreconcitables and super pairiots whose one ambition in life seems to be not so much to uplift their country as to destroy the Party once aptly described by the present Bishop of Killaice, Most Ray Dr FROMRTY, as the army and navy Ireland. In a very interesting report the General Secretary, Mr Joseph Devlin, M P. showed that the League is well up to the s;andard of its highest form and able and prepared at a moment's notice, and in every emergency, to respond to any demand that may be made upon it by the Irish Party. " The crisis facing the Irish Party and the Irish people on the outbreak of the war," he said, "was one of the greatest and most far-reaching which any party' or people was ever called upon to meet. A single false move on thepart of either the Party or the people would, undoubtedly, have entailed consequences at once disastrous and beyond hope of redemption for a generation. It was assuredly a time to try men's sonis, to put to the test the good faith, the political judgment, and the especity for Self-Government of Irishmen. The polgnancy of the crisis may new be said to have passed. The esition of Ireland and her national cause was.

bis far-seeing and singularly wise and statesmanlike setion at the outbreak of the war, Mr. REDMOND did more than any leader who ever . classes Ireland which was: the abiding and absorbing dream of Davis's life. The result of the line of policy he adopted and is to-day barriers of prejudice and misunderstanding and animosity which have for so long stood in the way of the emancipation of our country astion. Ireland's attitude in regard to the war, as Mr DEVLIN phrases it in his report, has materially and powerfully helped to remore the last vestige of prejudice against Home Rule, thereby enabling our Irish Parliament to be established on a basis of mutual. understanding and goodwill amongst all secions of Irishmen, and the hearty approval and arrer stronger or better assured. She has lost as friend, whilst amongst her host of new hends are to be reckoned thousands of those who, owing to prejudice or misunderstanding, famerly ranked amongs: her opponents." By God-speed of liberty-loving men everywhere." Such a prospect is surely worth realising and making a sacrifice to convert into an actuality, and obviously the one and only way to bring it shout is to keep solidly united and organised behind the Irish Leader and his colleagues. That being the case, there is much in the report read by the member for West Beilast at Monday's meeting to gratify and aspire the genuine friends and well-wishers of the cause of our motherland. The country has given and continues to give magolficent proof that it is sound to the core, and is affording striking evidence of that political sagacity and sanity on which so much for the future of the nation will depend. It would indeed be a matter for surprise and a prece of the blackest and meanest ingratitude as well as of criminal folly on the part of the people if they did not preserve the unity and organisation that they se ethibiting to day on the side of the great leader who has served them so well. Mr BEDEONO and his colleagues have given many sebstantial proofs, even quite recently, of their power, vigilance and effectiveness as thampions and guardians of the rights and interests of their country. "The attempt," Mys Mr Devilin, " to impose an unjust tax on theckmated; the Registration Act, with its liceal scientific and technical training, for the otacit of agriculture and the efficient breeding of horses, the Irish Party, in the name of Irebbacrious possibilities, was rendered inoperative, so far as Ireland was concerned. On the session of conscription, the Irish Party, so lat back as June last, preclaimed the fixed determination of the Irish people not to submit to the principle of comparision regarding millbuy service, and Ireland to day stands the one coastry in Europe freed from conscription.
