

A skirt of white tulle, worked with small gold beads, very small and wide apart, with a fourreau of black satin, scalloped at the bottom, very short, falling over the tulle skirt. This is embroidered with dead gold on the shoulders, from which long chains are draped across the body.

A robe of gold coloured tulle, with trimming of silver foliage. Very low body, with berthe of plaited tulle, edged with silver leaves. Bouillonnees sleeves. Chemisette of point de Venise. Head dress of gold and silver grapes, with purple leaves.

A white imperial velvet dress; all the seams are piped with blue satin. The bottom of the skirt is trimmed with two chicorees of blue crape, headed with a bias fold of white satin, which is carried up each side. A series of white satin and blue crape rosettes or bows are placed up the front. The body, which is low, is formed of alternate stripes or folds of white imperial velvet and blue satin, and is finished off with a ruche at the top. The sash is of bias satin, and tied at the side.

A dress of pink terry velvet. The bottom of the skirt is worked with silver beads and silver braid. Tunic of pink tulle, embroidered with silver, looped up at the side by a bouquet of daisies with silver hearts and foliage, and two ends of white moire. Low body, with plastron worked with silver beads and braid. A similar embroidery is carried round the back and the sleeves, and a small bouquet is placed on the left side of the body.

A white tulle dress, with a white satin flounce round the bottom, and a second edging a rich tablier, composed of narrow flounces of tulle separated by three rows of black velvet and threads of gold, open in front in V shape; the opening filled in with narrow frills and velvet, matching the front of the skirt. Head dress of gold fruit and black velvet.

A dress of violet taffetas, with an insertion round the bottom. Fourreau—or low body and upper skirt of black satin, with plaits or nearly so, and only about four yards and a half round the bottom, trimmed with insertion. With this is worn a pelerine, pointed in front of guipure; and the same lace forms the jockeys and revers. Upon the jockeys a bow of violet taffetas, with jet aiguillettes. The revers of the sleeves are very wide, the point reaching to the elbow.

The bonnets are worn quite as small as those of last month, and although the fashion may be still seen at the theatre, the Empire is decidedly the coiffure de ville.

Felt is gaining favour, and some very elegant bonnets are made of this material. Thus, a bonnet of silver-drab felt with strait curtain of the same, trimmed with a torsade of velvet the same colour, and a small bird at the side. Bandeau of turquoise, blue velvet and silver leaves. Blue strings.

We must not forget to give some models of the Pamela bonnet, which, although from its shortness at the ears is becoming only to a young face, is in favour with some. Thus a bonnet of black and ruby velvet trimmed with feathers of each colour, the inside trimmed with a band of velvet and agrafe of gold. Another was of mauve velvet, with ornaments of blonde and silver.

the city of Waterford.

At St. Stephen's Church, Dublin, Henry Edward Stokes, Madras Civil Service, son of Henry Stokes, Esq., Ballyard West, Tralee, to Janet, daughter of Wm. Stokes, M.D., 5, Merrion-square North, Dublin.

At St. Paul's Church, Arran-quay, Dublin, Laurence, son of Mr. John Murphy, Aughrim-street, Dublin, to Mary Teresa Josephine, daughter of the late Mr. Andrew Daughney, of North King-street, Dublin.

At the Church of St. Andrew, Westland-row, Dublin, Francis E. J. M'Donnell, Esq., J.P., Dunferth, son of the late Sir Francis M'Donnell, of Dunferth, to Georgina, daughter of James Gernon, Esq., J.P., Athcarne Castle, Co. Meath.

At the Church of St. Andrew, Westland-row, Dublin, P. Gilchrist, Esq., to Mary, daughter of Mr. D. Bartley, both of Dublin.

At the Metropolitan Church, Marlborough-street, Dublin, Patrick Nolan, Bennikery, county Carlow, to Alicia Saurin, daughter of Mr. John Saurin, Dublin.

At the Catholic Church, Ballybrack, John O'Hagan, Esq., Q.C., to Fanny, youngest daughter of the Right Hon. Judge O'Hagan.

At Brixton, near London, John Edward Bolland, Esq., Church-road, Dublin, to Marie Catherine Van De Eynde, daughter of A. Van De Eynde, Esq., Theobald's House, Stockwell, Surrey, London.

At Whitehaugh, Wm. James Lumsden, Esq., of Balmedie, to Williamina Stewart, daughter of the late Colonel James John and Williamina Helen Stewart-Forbes-Leith, of Whitehaugh.

DEATHS.

At Santry Vicarage, Co. Dublin, on Saturday, 2nd December, Dorothea, the beloved wife of the Rev. Henry Lefroy, and sister to the late O'Grady, Kilballyowen, in this county.

In Ennis, on Saturday last, at an advanced age, Mr. Wm. Eyan, provision dealer.

At Magnolia-terrace, Cork, Mary Christabella Matilda, daughter of the late Wm. Allen, Esq., of Liscongill, county Cork.

Elizabeth, wife of Mr. John Connor, Upper Dominick-st., Dublin.

At Wicklow-street, Dublin, Mr. Mercer Browne M'Dermott.

At Gurteen Lodge, Ballinasloe, Mr. Wm. Mahon.

At Clara, Mary, wife of Mr. Daniel White.

At Talbot-street, Dublin, John Furlong, Esq.

At Montpellier-parade, Monkstown, the Rev. John Henry Browne, son of the late Rev. Hawtrey W. Browne, rector of Camolin, Co. Wexford.

At his residence, Mardyke-street, Cork, Mr. Wm. Whelan.

At Little James's-street, Dublin, Mr. James Quirk.

At Mulgrave-terrace, Kingstown, Catherine, wife of Wm. Sullivan, Esq., late Inspector of Revenue Police.

At 17, Nicholas-street, Dublin, the wife of John Collins.

At Gregg's-lane, Dublin, John Flynn.

At Little Forrest Lodge, near Swords, Joseph Smyth, Esq.

At Great Brunswick-street, Dublin, Wm. Duggan, Esq., barrister-at-law.

At Lower Baggot-street, Dublin, Wm. Galwey, Esq.

At York-street, Belfast, Mr. James Rose.

At M-Tier-street, Belfast, Mr. Henry Dempster.

Suddenly, in London, John Joseph O'Connor, T.C., of Denroche's Cross, Cork.

At Ottawa, Canada, Jane, widow of John Dudgeon, Esq., of Rosella, county Westmeath.

At Woolwich, Ethel Emily D'Oyly, daughter of William H. Noble, Esq., Royal Artillery.

At Torhousemuir House, Wigtownshire, N.B., Lieut.-Gen. James McHaffie, of Torhousemuir.

At Ramsgate, Augustus Julia Winniett, widow of the late Commander Sir Wm. Winniett, Royal Navy, formerly Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Gold Coast.

At Ryde, Isle of Wight, Ann Helena, widow of the late Wm. Menzies, Esq., Judge in the Supreme Court at the Cape of Good Hope.

At Hyperon Lodge, Rosherville, Kent, Admiral Wm. James Mingave.

At The Marina, St. Leonard's-on-Sea, Sir Richard Madox Bromley, K.C.B., late one of the Commissioners of Greenwich Hospital.