There was a large concourse of people at the There was a large concourse of people at the New Zesland team. The now knowns Colonial combination travelled down from Dublin by the 3 o'clock express, and reached here at 7.16. On alighting from their specially reserved compating in the little and their specially reserved compating in the little and their specially reserved compating to the latter the "All Blacks" were nested by a number of stewards appointed it consection with the arrangem has for to-day's match, who welcamed them to Limerick. The visitors then drows in three complexes to Cruise's Heel, and were accorded quits an ovation endote by the crowlis that had congregated along the sidewalks. Subsequently the visitors in delged in a walk cound the city, where for the sone football goesip appears to hold a monopoly.

NOTES ON THE PLAY.

After the defeat of the Irish team on Saturday After the defeat of the Irish team on Saturday is was only to be expected—In fact a foregone conclusion—that the Munter team, no matter its composition, would be routed by the scientific, stubborn, and fleeting New Zealanders. The result phis afternoon in every way justified the prophecy as the score shows. No one having any conception of the doings of the "All Blacks" since they set foot on British soll could dobut the issue, and as such went to witness their style and combination rather than to see anything like a decent stand up against them on the part of the representatives of the to the tune of Patrick's Day. The reception accorded the Irishmen was of a stirring there are the Irishmen was of a stirring there are the Irishmen was of the Southern Province. From the very start Southern Provin resisting score (getting were unimportant factors. Quillinan, the eleventh hou custodian gave an indifferent display, and Newton was not up to the standard of praise showered on him as a good type of wing threequator. Stokes and McCrath, especially the latter, were decidedly was in defence, their tackling being uncertain and feeble. McLear, as we have said, was easily the hero of the back division. He gave a magnificent exhibition of his prowess as a centre, three-quarter, both in tackling and stemming rushes. In fact he was the sarriour of our side from a beating equal to that meted out either to Devon or the Hardepoels by the Colonials in their earlier engagements. Next to him Joe O'Connor at half shone out as a youth, who reflected credit on Munster, and on the club of which be is a foromost player. He worked like a trojan behind a beaten pack, with one single exception, Wallace, and he in every way justified his selection on the team. He put up with an amount of gruelling, and the very few openings that were undead were initiated by him. Beaden him, McQueen, substitute for Millar was weak. It was the greatest pity that this place was not given to Thady O'Connor, the nippy Rockwell half, who would have unded an admirable partner for the Garryowen man. The forwards deserve no individualization for for infliant play, the only man amongst them, "allace, as the "winger," being their real mainstay and only capable performer.

Of the New Zealanders the only thing that remains to be said of them is that they in every respect deserve the encontinums that have been passed on their individual play.

A WORD FOR OURSELVES.

Our readers this afternoon have been as well stered for as the Dublin folk. Although the catered for as the Public folk. Although the match was not over till 4.15, at five o'clock the boys were selling on the streets copies of the paper containing nearly two columns of description of the actual game as it progressed, together with the result. This californ has additional notes on the game, as witnessed by our football reporter.
