

Sen Wilson . . . coming to Limerick.

came everywhere as a conciliatory move, will address a public meeting at the Jean Monnet theatre, in the has expressed great admiration for Deputy Jim Kemmy, and has kept up a correspondence for several years

The band back in 1963 . . . Martin O'Brien, staff major, Anthony Ryan, drum major, and Gerry McMahon, pipe major.

'Costly lawyer

By EUGENE PHELAN

THE use of lawyers at Employment Appeals Tribunals has been attacked by a member of the tribunal because they add to the cost of taking a case to the body.

"I do not think this is a healthy development because it involves unnecessary expense for both the employer and especially the employee in presenting their case to the Tribunal," Sen dan Neville, a member of the tribunal since 1977 said.

Sen Neville was speaking on the Unfair Dismissals Act, 1993, in the Senate.

"It can cost £1,000 to bring a case to the courts, which is too high in the context and in the what the tribunal out as an inexpensive informal type of tion" he added.

Sen Neville there was often of the tribunal itself fact that it did legalistic approach "this is to an case.

The tribunal h tory function to in dispute rather seek to resolve conciliation or he added.

The Limerick tor said that the s of the Employment Tribunal could that in 1991, 4, and appeals were it.

"The tribunal

Pipe band still calling the tune . . .

By EUGENE PHELAN

WHEN the Limerick CBS Pipe Band marched through the streets of Limerick on St. Patrick's Day they celebrated 30 years of performing.

And they are to celebrate this historic milestone with a massive re-union on this Friday March 19 in the Glentworth Hotel, Limerick.

"We are expecting between 200 and 300 people for our function in the Glentworth," explained, Gerry McMahon, the first pipe major with the band.

Over the years the band has represented Limerick and Ireland at a number of major events, bringing much honour to the famous Sexton Street school.

It was with the aim of fostering a love of music, especially traditional music in its pupils, that the Christian Brothers started the band.

A video of trips abroad, photographs and press cuttings including one of the first articles on the band on March 16, 1963, in the Limerick Leader will be included in an exhibition at the re-union.

Tickets for the event can be got from any of the band committee at the school.

Funeral of Jim Beary,

