THE DOON MURDER CASE.

THE VERDICT.

John Kennedy was indicted for the wiltul murder of John O'Connell, at Coogs, near Doon, County Limerick, on 27th August.

Mr Brereton Barry (instructed by Mr Kenny, solicitar, Limerick), defended.

The parties it will be remembered were engaged at a football match between Gurtavilla and Ools. The prisoner, as alleged, though not in the game, saw a comrade thrown down by O'Connell and he sushed at O'Connell and stabbed him through the heart with a knife.

The Jury were considering their verdict at the time of telegraphing.

ASSIZES.

The trial of Laurence Bradley, lateclerk of the Roman Catholic Cathedral, Mullingar, on the charge of having poisoned a Publin workman engaged at the Cathedral, in order to cover his own rebbery of the safe, by suggesting that the workman had first robbed the safe and then commit ted suicide, was resumed at the Leinster Winter Assizes in Wicklow before Mr Justice Johnson, yesterday. After an absence of an hour an half, the jury returned into court, and the foreman stated that they could not possibly agree as to their verdict. The case has been accordingly postponed to the Spring Assizes for the County Westmeath.
