Civic Trust has permanent home

LIMERICK Civic Trust has finally found a permanent home.

Since its inception in 1983 the voluntary organisation, committed to improving the local environment, had a number of teething problems, with one of the greatest the finding of suitable accommodation.

Now, however, the Romany lifestyle of the Civic Trust is over, thanks mainly to the wholehearted efforts of director of the Trust, Mr. Denis Leonard, and treasurer, Mr. Brendan Lynch.

Now the Trust will be based at Unit 32 at the Tait Business Centre, off Dominick Street, Limerick.

Graveyard, opposite the Granary, continue, valuable research and administrative work is carried out in the Tait office.

Now the director of the Trust, Denis Leonard, wants more of the general public to contact the Trust and come up with ideas. To date, many locals have donated the equipment, including typewriters and desks free of charge. And businessman. Mr. Paddy Hoare, provided a While the physical work of reshaping the Potato Market, Merchant's Quay and St. Michael's premises at the Crescent House until the recent move.

The initial response to the Civic Trust's first newsletter just published has been very positive.

Mr. Leonard stressed this week that their doors are always open to the public or by telephone (49477). Membership is also open to interested parties.
