Priests

CALAMITIOUS EFFECTS OF THE STORM OF WEDNESDAY—LOSS OF THIRTEEN LIVES ON THE MANNON.

Twenty-five persons were lost in the storm which, on Wednesday, to collect the isle, in the neighbouring Islands, for the purpose of marriage. When heavily laden, and about to put off, several of those on board took alarm at the angry aspect of the waves, which, ruffled by the tempest, dashed the surrounding shore with unwonted fury. An all-powerful providence, however, with other trials, and their ill-fated companions (eleven men and two women) with a determination to encounter the passage home. The frail vessel was over-loaded, by the anxiety and fear of the owner to secure a large cargo, that she was irresistibly drawn towards the main, which, rushing like a torrent, overwhelmed her in an instant, within a few yards of land, leaving a blank indistinctly by the evanescent prospect of thirteen human beings struggling between this world and the next. The agonizing cries of the wretched sufferers were hurled on the blast towards shore, where their distracted friends, unable to afford assistance, gazed intently on the spectacle of life and death. But the sons of the sea, far from being afraid for themselves, side was the contest of nature, and when an immense surge choked the last effort of expiring nature. In the space of fifteen minutes, their bodies, borne on the bosom of the swollen waves, rolled slowly and heavily to the nearest shore, where the receding waters left them without a spark of life, but only clung in the fond embrace of despairing friends, and kindred, whose bitter cries not even the howling blast could smother.

This deplorable record of calamity has plunged many families into the depths of sorrow and distress; in one instance, nine children have become destitute orphans. The boat was the property of a man, named Grady.

Two sailboats foundered in the same gale of the wind at Kildysart, but the crew were fortunately saved.

On the above day, also, a sailboat foundered near the mouth of the Seaton river. The crew took to the mast head, where they clung, though frequently washed by the waves, until a boat arrived and rescued them. They were released, and conveyed in safety to shore.

A letter received by us, this day, from an officer of the 22nd Regiment, dated Stoney Hill, Jamaica, 27th of March, states: “The Regiment is very healthy, no case of fever since our landing, and the officers and men in high spirits.”

Yesterday, the first division of the 34th arrived at Templemore, to replace the 53rd, now on a route to occupy the station of the 37th at Cork.

On Thursday, the 31st Instant, the detachments of the 24th Regiment stationed at Newcastle, Rathkale, Abbeycool, Glen, Askaton, Shanagolden, Abercrombie, and Patrick's Well, will be replaced by the 57th from Cork.

On Saturday, the 3d June, the first division of the 37th Regiment will arrive in this Garrison, and take up the quarters of the 24th, who proceed for Athlone, on Monday, the 4th June, where they replace the 61st Regiment, ordered for Dublin duty.

The depot of the 59th, at Tralee, daily expected to be moved.

The depot of the 19th Regiment marched, yesterday, from Cork to Killona.

The depot of the 97th Regiment have arrived at Buttevant from Cork, to replace the 10th, under Major Freer, who have moved to Cork, Spike Island, &c.

Major-General Sir Charles Doyle left this, yesterday, from the 57th, during his temporary absence, the command of the garrison devolves on Colonel Worsley, Royal Artillery.

His Majesty's ships Romney, and the Arab transport, have sailed from Portsmouth, and are daily expected at

THE THEATRE.

The new Company, from Cork, under Mr. M. appeared last night—Sinclair a delight, gave universal pleasure to a crowded circle was quite admire, and truly celebrated by Miss Holmes. This entertainment will be a bright treat; a profound and deep interest, adapted to give every thing to the facile critic in Theatricals could possibly be.

BIRTHS

At Nantenea Glebe, in this County, the Rev. James W. Graves, of two, to Mary Anne, his daughter.

At Heel House, County Waterford, the L. William Mason, Esq. of a son.

At Westport, County Mayo, the Lady Robert Potter, of a son.

At the Abbey-house, Waterford, the Lady Newport, Esq. of a daughter.

MARRIAGES

In St. Thomas's Church, Dublin, Henry Esq. to Caroline Augusta, sister of Sandres, head, formerly of Castlemoor, County Kilk, in Dublin, Beauchamp Colcheagh, Esq. to Miss Ingram, of County Clare, to Mary Anna, daughter of James, of Trincollage—Lodge, in same Florian William Gnutz, Esq. of Paris, to daughter of Samuel Bolty, of Abbey-street.

In Donahale Church, by the Reverend R. King, George Frederick Johnson, Esq. to J. of the Rev. William Hamilton, of Lecock. At Calverton, on Thursday, by the R. Coleman, Parsonage-House, to Miss late of Bath.

In Dublin, John Patteson, Esq. of W. street, to Maybella, eldest daughter of the late John Alley, of that City.

In Cork, William Carmo, Esq. of Mary late W. B. Brewer, Esq. of the Royal Henry Donnelly, Esq. of Tivoli, Coun to Anne, second daughter of William Dr. Dallongman, in the Queen's County.

At Carrick-on-Suir, John Power, Esq. of the late Patrick Power, of Terla. At Dunmore, Barton Anderson, Esq. only daughter of the late Maurice Kennett.

At tony, Wals, Joseph Beasley, Esq. of At County Tipperary, to Henrietta Maria, d'Ellis Boates, Esq. and niece to the late Lord At Carrick, John Dempsey, Esq. M. late A. Colquhoun, Esq.

In London, J. McClelland, Esq. to daughter of Thomas Curtayne, of Woolf Esq.

Charles Lennox Grenville Berkeley, Esq. E. Elizabeth, daughter of the late James Her of Stoneleigh Abbey, in the county of W.

DEATHS.

At the Castle Barracks, on Wednesday, Master of the Band of the 82nd Regiment.

At his father's house, in Bridge-street, Egan. — A young man of good character.

At Parsonstown, in the 12th year of Rachel, second daughter of the late Rev. of the, in the County of Westmoreland, of the most engaging and interesting bore a lingering illness with the greates resignation—she has left a widowed moth loss of a dutiful and affectionate child.

In Killarney, Freeman Donoghue, E.

in Limerick, in Dublin.