Richard Harris in powerful role

Limerick film actor Richard Harris stars in a most unusual film at the City Theatre this week and is partnered by such giants of the screen as Laurence Harvey and Richard Todd.

It is "The Long and the Short and the Tall"—a film well worth seeing and one that is certain to attract a packed audience all during its run.

Many of us may have seen the film in the past but it is worth a second visit and should certainly be marked as "a must" for those who have not had the pleasure.

The programme at the City Theatre is one of exceptional value with Charlie Drake, Anne Haywood and Cecil Parker in Petticoat Pirates, one of the funniest films I have seen. And to add to the laughs, there is a re-issue of the Tom and Paschal movie "Daredevil Delinquents."

If you feel like having an enjoyable night out make the City Theatre your rendezvous. You will get your money's worth.

THURSDAY'S SHOW.

Thursday next will be another memorable occasion at the City Theatre when the British Empire and European heavyweight champion boxer, Henry Cooper, and the "Gorgeous Gael," Jack Doyle, will appear in a boxing exhibition which will be backed with a full supporting variety show featuring music and song.

According to reports reaching us, this is something well worth seeing.—T.T.

BOOMING

Sales of colour TV sets are zooming. Americans today buy one for every black and white set sold and one company says: "There is every indication this could be the biggest year ever for sales."

Twenty firms are turning out colour models that range in price from £132 to £670 a time.

And broadcasting stations are keeping pace with the big switchover. Out of a total of 486,425 stations are now equipped to telecast in colour.

Reception is good. Sports programmes. Westerns and outdoor movies are the biggest hits.
