

Film show on Monday night

P. J. Carroll and Co. has generously consented to visit us on Monday next, January 4th, to show us "Two to Play", a film based on the "Sweet Afton Tournament, 1964" and also part of the 1964 Masters Tournament in The United States. The programme will last about 1 1/2 hours.

As a consequence of this programme there will be no bridge meeting on that night.

I have been asked to draw the attention of members to one or two matters of some importance. From time to time, clubs, bags and other miscellaneous items of golf equipment go astray. Golfers are sometimes quite absent minded, and may at times be quite careless—how often have you seen people put their clubs in someone else's bag? It is maddening to find you have lost or mislaid your property. If this has happened to you, the committee would like to remind you that they cannot accept any responsibility; therefore make sure that you put your equipment in your locker with lock secured and insure your bags, clubs etc. with some insurance company. A small premium covers both you and your property.

The second matter concerns the course. With the present conditions underfoot, the fairways and greens are easily damaged. Divots are bigger and deeper and plug marks on the green are considerable. Players can remedy to some extent the damage by replacing the divots carefully and ironing out the marks on the green. It is surprising what can be achieved by just a little care.

SUNDAY FOUR-BALL COMPETITION

These will be continued for the remainder of the winter season, as will also the weekly events, and the prizes will be more appropriate to the game—clubs, covers, balls, etc. There will be a special New Year Four-ball on Sunday.

Sale of farm

A farm containing about 65 acres the property of Mr. Patrick Laffan, Dromcloher, Cappamore, was sold by public auction recently to Mr. Martin Ryan Killuragh, Cappamore, for 18,500 and fees. Mr. Louis de Courcy, Auctioneer and Valuer, Limerick, had charge of sale.

KILDIMO'S GREAT EFFORT

SOME time back Liam Curtin purchased a ticket to help the Kildimo Parochial Building Fund in a licensed premises in Limerick and when the draw took place last week he drew second prize, which was a magnificent hamper valued at £20.

But there has been no trace of the Liam Curtin who purchased his ticket in the Sarsfield Bar in Rutland Street, The Parish Priest of Kildimo, Very Rev. M. J. Godfrey, brought the hamper to the Sarsfield Bar—only to be told that Mr. Curtin was not known to any of those who frequently meet in the premises.

LUCKY WINNER

The draw took place during Christmas week and a monster celi was held in conjunction with it. The local hall was packed to capacity and the raffle took place minutes before midnight.

Winner of the first prize—a hamper valued at £40—was Mrs. T. W. O'Connell, of Cowpark, Kilkennan. This she received the night the raffle was held and it was presented to her by one of the two raffia organisers, Mr. Peter J. Sheehy, of The Coach Inn, Kilkennan. Third prize—a £10 hamper—

The Harris family

It was little Jamie's big day

LEADER Woman Reporter

THE 21-months-old son of Limerick-born film star, Richard Harris, was baptised by Very Rev. M. Kenny, Adm., in the Pro-Cathedral in Ennis last Wednesday. . . . And for the young toddler it was a day of wonderful excitement for he, too, took an active part in the celebrations that marked the great occasion. Christened Jamie St. John Tudor Harris, he will be known as young Jamie—as indicated by his father when he told us—"We postponed Jamie's christening until now because I wanted him christened in Ireland."

Richard Harris, with his wife and family, arrived in this country on Christmas Eve, and will leave again this Friday.

Hugging the little boy, who cried when the baptismal waters were poured over his head, Richard Harris was the relaxed and happy family man.

A NEW FILM
This is just a brief holiday for the film star. When he leaves Ireland he will fly to Norway, where he is making a new film, "The Heroes of Telemark." "At least that was what they proposed to call it a few days ago," he smiled. "They may have changed it now." In this film he will play the part of a Norwegian Underground Leader.

Wearing a mink coat and hat, his blonde wife, Elizabeth Harris, held their other two children by the hand as she talked. They are Damian, 6, and Jared, 3.

Mrs. Harris, a native of Wales is daughter of Lord Omore. She met her husband in London, where they were married in 1957. "Life with Dickie, is always exciting," she said. "I travel with him everywhere. This helps to preserve our family life."

Mr. Jack Donnelly, manager of the Old Ground Hotel, Ennis, where the Harris family are staying, was god-father. Mr. Donnelly is brother-in-law of Richard Harris. A sister-in-law of Noel Harris, Mrs. William Lloyd, was god-mother.

"Your Ireland is a beautiful country. I love the fresh air," said Patricia Lee, of Kent. She has been Baby Jamie's nurse since October.

FOUR FILMS:

Richard Harris, 31, started his career with the London School of Dramatic Art. He took part in plays by Brendan Behan and Arthur Mills, the most notable being "View from the Bridge." After several TV. appearances, he then made his first major film, "Shake Hands with the Devil."

Dickie Harris won seven awards for his part in "This Sporting Life." At the Cannes Film Festival his performance in this film won him the Golden Spur, beating Gregory Peck into second place, although Peck had previously won the Oscar for his performance. Richard Harris has made four major films in 1964 for release in 1965.

Perhaps his best-known picture is "Three Faces of a Woman," which he made with Soraya.

IRISH LANGUAGE.

Richard Harris created quite a stir in "Open House," on Tuesday night, when he commented on a question on the Irish language revival. He said yesterday "Our culture tends to be absorbed by England, and I believe the best way to preserve the Irish personality is by reviving the Irish language." He continued: "After all, many of our children nowadays are bilingual. We must have English, but I see no reason why they cannot learn Irish as well." Mr. Harris confessed that he himself is not a Gaelic speaker.

Dickie Harris wants to buy a house, or rather a castle in Ireland. "Your home is part of your personality," he said. He tried to buy a castle the property of Lady Christobel Ampthill, near Kinvara. The price, £30,000, if the present owner could continue to reside there, or £50,000 if he wished to buy it outright. He now thinks it would be cheaper to re-build an old castle.

YEATS PLAY.

What are his plans for the future? He would like to do a re-make of "Wuthering Heights," and do a series of plays in Dublin. For the Yeats centenary he hopes to get Michael MacLiamoil interested in doing a short one-act play by Yeats. This was sent to him by Mrs. M. Hanley of Limerick, Secretary of the Kiltartan Society. It is called "The Dreaming of the Bones," and would last about half-an-hour.

Among the guests present at the Christening were Mr. Jimmy Harris and his wife Marie, Mr. Noel Harris and his lovely wife, Ronnie, Mr. William Harris, another brother, was also there. He is at present studying at U.C.D., and has spent some time on the Continent. I also saw Mrs. Jack Donnelly, who is the Harris brothers' sister; Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Lloyd, Mr. Roderick Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Donovan, Mr. and Mrs. James White, and Mr. and Mrs. Brendan O'Regan.

Limerick show break its record

LEADER Staff Rep

MEET vivacious 25-years-old Limerick domiciled, singing star Teresa the top guest stars in the current presentation of "Christmas Crackers" capacity houses nightly.

Teresa, in an interview during the week, told me that prior to taking up singing she was employed as a telephonist, and in her spare time took a keen interest in photography. She commenced singing at local parties and dances in her native Bundoran, and then joined the Assaroo Celi Band. She had many enjoyable months with that combination before her big chance came.

Teresa flew into Shannon on Saturday last direct from a very successful tour of Cyprus, and is off to Aberdeen for television purposes in conjunction with her latest hit, which is selling like "wild fire" in Scotland.

WONDERFUL

In addition to Miss Duffy there is another show stopping artiste in this version of "Christmas Crackers," and he is Mai Tino. With his powerful voice he earns for himself rounds of applause with his selection from "The Student Prince" and "The Wedding." A great deal more is bound to be heard of this wonderful artiste.

The Antonio, trio give a superb display of gymnastics which simply has to be seen to be believed, and there is also one of the finest jugglers displayed ever given in Limerick by Mephisto, and no words can describe this act—you just have to see it for yourself.

PROMISING

But, per usual, the heroes of the night are our two comedians, Tom and Paschal, whose sketches cause hilarious laughter; Joe Neiland, Eamon O'Connor—what a pity he has not a special act to himself—Larry Kennedy, Tony Nolan and his dancers, and the promising Timmy King and all the remainder are deserving of the highest praise for a job very well done.

A word of praise, too, for the men behind the scenes without whose able assistance it would not be possible to have any "Christmas Crackers," and what a loss this would be to the people
