THE ENTERTAINMENT WORLD

Richard Harris

- Now in his early 50's, Richard Harris of Limerick has been having a triumphant run in Lerner and Loewe's "Camelot" at the Apollo Victoria Theatre.
- "Dickie" Harris has made a world name for himself on stage, screen and television, and had a Highly praised run of over one year in "Camelot" in America, culminating in a Broadway season.
- In the London production, the cast does not quite do him justice, and he shines through like a glittering star, his acting and singing capabilities sustaining a most satisfying evening at the theatre.
- When I met him (after the show) in his luxurious dressing room, he was anxious to hear all the latest news about Limerick. His life-long interest in sport manifested itself when he asked for backgrounds to the rising generations of rugby players who are making names for themselves.
- He asked for several people by name and I have since passed on his regards to them.
- "Dickie", in the course of a chat which went on for almost 80 minutes, told me that he has several films lined up, and has decided to appear in a number of classical plays "like the ones Anew McMaster used to do".
- Although he did not take up acting seriously until he was 24, he has never forgotten his early apprenticeship with the many visiting companies, who played in Limerick in the late '40's and early '50's.
- Richard is at home these days in Hollywood, the Bahamas, the leading capitals, and anywhere his vocation takes him.

- And it looks as if a whole new chapter is about to be written by this local boy who dreamed that one day his name would be up in lights, and eventually saw it all come true.
- Thanks, "Dickie", for a most interesting evening.
