Horne, E. Gallagher, J. Bell, P. Tobin, M. McMahon, J. Brock, H. J. Burroughs, T. Kean, and various others.

Amongst the carriages were those of Sir Thomas Cleeve, Mr. F. C. Cleeve, Mr. J. W. Cleeve, Mr. James Quinn, J.P.; Mrs. O'Brien (South Hill), Mr. McCann (Manager National Bank), Mr. W. Stokes, J.P.; Mr. E. M. Russell, Mr. William McDonnell, J.P.; Mr. E. H. P. Hosford, J.P.; Mr. Tidmarsh, Dr. Fogarty, Dr. Kearney, Mr. John O'Donnell (William Street), J. J. L. Frost (Meelick), Mr. S. Tubridy, Mrs. Cunningham, Dr. O'Meehan, Mr. Wm. Holliday, etc.

The beautiful oak casket which was covered with handsome wreaths sent by the family (there being none from friends by request) was borne from the house to the hearse, and again to the church by some of the principal officials of the Messrs. Cleeve.

The officiating clergymen were the Rev. T. B. Robertson, and Rev. H. Orpen. The remains of the deceased lady were laid to rest beside those of her late husband, in a grave lined with that touching emblem of love and remembrance—the ivy leaf.

Messrs. Todd and Co., carried out the funeral arrangements.

BOY'S INJURIES.

CITY FIRM MULCTED.

At the Quarter Sessions yesterday, his Honor Judge Adams examined Dr. Waters, Barrington's Hospital, in the action under the Employers Liability Act by a boy named John Tracy, for injuries received while acting in the capacity of cash boy at Lipton's, Ltd., in November last.

Mr. J. S. Gaffney, solr., represented the plaintiff, and Mr. A. J. Dodds, solr., the defendants.

His Honor said he had visited the scene of the accident in this case, and had been very much impressed by the construction of the place. He asked where the manager of the firm of Lipton's Limited was.

Mr. Gaffney—He is gone to America.

Mr. Dodd—It is reported he is gone there.

His Honor said he had seen the plaintiff in the street the other day at a time and place where he could not see him, and he came to the conclusion that he was still lame.

Dr. Waters—He is not so bad.

His Honor—That is not the question. What do you think of his condition now, doctor?

Dr. Waters said the boy had a pair of flat feet which would account for his walking lame.

His Honor said he never heard that before.

Dr. Waters—We cannot say what is the cause of his lameness, but I don't think he is permanently injured.

Replying to the court, the father of the boy stated that the accident occurred on the 24th November, and prior to that date he had never noticed him lame.

The plaintiff said whenever he walked now his knee pained him.

His Honor said he had examined the scene of the occurrence at the request of both parties, and was convinced that an accident could only have taken place as described by the boy himself. When the ladder was removed the boy lifted the trap door, and finding that it had been removed fell. His Honor found there was great negligence

Niger and Gross opening up to the commerce of Southern Nigeria Hinterland, had a stubborn encounter with the natives of Ohoho beyond Egwanga, and up the Emo River. The natives, who had been levying toll and menacing trade, lost two hundred killed and wounded. The British casualties were four natives killed and seven wounded. Six villages were burned.

ANTI-SEMITIC FEELING.

JUDGE ADAMS' GOOD ADVICE.

At the adjourned Quarter Sessions, Max J. Blund, Jewish dealer, 60 Henry street, sued James Rahilly, Ballyclogh, for £1 3s. 2d., amount due for goods sold and delivered, within the past six years on foot of an account.

Mr. T. H. Kenny, solr., appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. J. S. Gaffney, solr., for the defendant.

The plaintiff produced his books showing the dealings that had taken place between defendant's wife and himself.

Mr. Kenny said objection was never made to pay until recently.

To the Court—Business transactions which the defendant was aware of took place between plaintiff and Mrs. Rahilly, while defendant was not home.

His Honor—Mrs. Rahilly did not say to you that her husband was not aware of these transactions.

The plaintiff was proceeding to answer the question, when

Mr. Gaffney intervened. He said Blund was very well known in the city.

Mr. Kenny protested against Mr. Gaffney's insinuation.

His Honor—Let us not add fuel to fire. Let us conduct this case as if there was no trouble in the town.

Cross-examined by Mr. Gaffney—You were dealing with Mrs. Rahilly without the knowledge of her husband? Her husband knew everything about it.

Mr. Gaffney—Do you positively swear that?

Yes.

Mr. Gaffney—Did you ever go to her husband and say to him that his wife had been privately borrowing money from you? I did. I said she owed me money for clothes.

Mr. Gaffney—I am not talking of clothes at all. Did you say to Rahilly's your wife borrowed money from me without your knowledge? I did not say that.

At this stage his Honor stopped the case, defendant's contention being that plaintiff lent money to his wife while he was in South Africa.

His Honor said he was going to adopt a strong action in this case in the interest of the peace of the city. He would postpone the case until next sessions. He would not at the present moment have a Jew and a Christian case gone into. There had been the greatest exaggeration on both sides of everything that had happened. His Honor had been in the city for the last month, and a quiet city he never saw. If he was to believe everything he saw in the papers, one would think that Limerick was another Kishineff. He intended to give justice to every man, Jew and Christian, and small as that case was, in the interests of Limerick, and until this unfortunate trouble had passed over, and until the city returned to its usual state, he would not have such a miserable case heard. He earnestly prayed and hoped, and if the Jewish community, to which he was not hostile, had anything in their business calculated to cause just complaint, he hoped they would mend it. He expressed the hope that the people of Limerick would not molest the Jews or act injuriously towards them in any way whatever.

The case then stood adjourned.
