MOUTH, Nov. 1. Yesterday arrived here the ship Figard, of 38 guns, Captain [unclear] from a cruise, and brought in with her a fine French frigate, called the Venus, of 38, and 250 men, which she captured on the 1st, in the Bay of Biscay, in company with the Indefatigable, of 38 guns, Captain [unclear]. The Venus was bound from Rochfort to [unclear] with dispatches, and has on board a large quantity of naval stores and provisions, over and above her own complement.

LONDON, NOVEMBER 3.

Maurix, the Secretary to Count Bentinck, arrived in town on Friday from Luneville, and presented to the Minister, addressed to the Baroness of Breitenberg, the Imperial Envoy Extraordinary at this Court. A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday, and the result of their opinions having been communicated to Count Bentinck, Mr. Maurix set off on Saturday evening on his return to Luneville, and failed to arrive from Dover in a British flag of truce. The last division of the last loan to the Emperor on the 22d of October, in consequence of the departure from the Austrian Minister to Messrs. The Gallery of Paintings at Florence has been taken up, and put on board the Anna. This has been done by way of precaution, to prevent any hostilities should recommence in Italy.

Mr. Fox has written a circular letter to the Generals of all the Counties, desiring them to obtain by the most prompt and efficacious means the best possible account of the quantities of wheat, and other grain, potatoes, &c. now in the possession of the farmers, mealmen, millers, and traders, and to transmit the same to the meeting of Parliament. The Revenue, each in his own way, set about collecting accounts. Some of them have appointed assessors, others have attended the meetings, and some have made personal applications to the farmers.

Perhaps the only length the power of the Government can legally go before the meeting of Parliament, but if a wiser, better, and more enlarged plan be not then adopted for obtaining an accurate inventory of the Corn, &c. in the Kingdom, better never have been entered upon. An individual will be eager to conceal his property, if it be left in his power. It is expected that men will be willing to procure their own infamy? The idea is absurd, and a measure of coercion, if any thing is to be expected, or wished for from it.

Following is an extract of a letter from the Emperor, dated Oct. 18, inserted in the last issue: "We learn, that negotiations of peace have been entered into by the Emperor and the Emperor, in relation to the restoration of the empire. Some differences between France and England, which they are happy to find, are not

It appears that great quantities of old Malt, of an indifferent quality, remains on hand, which being unfit for brewers use, a considerable loss must accrue to the proprietors unless the distillers are permitted to work it up, as there is no other means to dispose of it. An application, we hear, is making to Government to allow the malt of that description only to be distilled.

LIMERICK, — NOVEMBER 8.

The 21st Regiment of Light Dragoons, lately arrived from Scotland, are expected shortly to march in from the North, and to do duty here the ensuing year.

Last week, a Swedish vessel, bound for Leghorn, put in by stress of weather to Tarbert harbour, on Monday evening, a Gentleman passenger, the Mate, and three of the sailors, went on shore to dinner; and on their return, in a small sail-boat, they were upset in a squall, and unfortunately every soul perished.

We have heard of an outrage so shocking to humanity, that if it was not conveyed to us from unquestionable authority, we should not wound the feelings of our readers by inserting it in this Chronicle:—Last week, two Labourers from the County of Kerry, who had for some time worked between Glinn and Newcastle, in this Co. were taken from their bed, by an armed banditti, who required them to swear to quit that part of the country where they were considered interlopers; this the poor Men complied with, and intended going off next morning; but the Wretches swore they should carry marks with them, and actually with Woollen Cards tore the Flesh off the backs and breasts of the two Labourers.—It is added, that the Knight of Glinn, whose exertions for the preservation of the Peace does him infinite honor, is making diligent search after the perpetrators of the above horrid deed.

The three Calprits, mentioned in our last, were executed near the Village of Cullen, on Thursday evening:—Four of the five Men who were sentenced to be flogged, received each 75 lashes only, Sir James Duff having, with his wonted humanity, remitted the remainder of 500.—Connor Ryan was not flogged:—The bodies of the two Roaches and Thomas Ryan, were interred near the Gaol of Tipperary.

Notwithstanding a number of troops were out in every direction on Wednesday last, in consequence of the execution of the above three men, yet on that very night, a farmer who lived on the high road between Cahircorlish and Pallingreen, was barbarously beat by an armed party, consisting of 8 men, who broke into his House, and also robbed him of 135 Guineas.

Yesterday, Roger and William Ryan, were committed to the County Gaol by John Evans, Esq. charged with Rebellious practices:—they were escorted to town by a detachment of Capt. Waller's indefatigable corps of Owna and Arra Cavalry.
