IRELAND AND THE AIR SERVICE, Watched" and "Hark! The Herald Angels the Treaty. An announcement of particular concern to commercial interests in this country was made some days ago by the London "Star." We know, of course, that some of the Continental countries have long since been linked up with London by an air service | with power, tone, and precision, and the solo Council, on being interviewed, expressed himself having connection with most of the big between Croydon and Paris, which in turn sends aeroplanes to Germany, Switzerland, and Italy. During the Atlantic flights a few years ago, the very favourable geographical position of Ireland as a "via media" of long distance air services was discussed, and there was talk of establishfor the purpose. Not much has been heard of the subject for some time, but now with

European cities. There is a regular service | air "Every Valley" were taken by Mr Layng. | great opportunity before the country. He stated ing an aerodrome in the west of Ireland chorus, and the processional hymn was "With the people of Limerick to support the ratification Dean, the Precentor, the Archideacon, Rev A E the possibility let us hope the probability, Hewetson, Succentor, and the Rev J R Campion, of an Irish settlement in sight, a cross-Channel airway scheme comes up afresh, 6 o'clock, and continued down to 11 15, when the Plans are being made for linking up crowded congregations at all the Masses, an London by air with Dublin and Belfast, and we read that the schemes are receiving "the | every one of the churches. At 12 c'olook solemn greatest possible official support. This is not surprising if we call to mind the fact that in the House of Commons some time ago it was officially announced that the British Government would give every possible support to the development of commercial aviation. The advantages to Ireland of an air service would be un- to Greenpark for the race meeting. At night the is the country's own concern, but I, at doubted. We would not be solely dependent on the Postal services, the acceleration of which we have been so long looking for in Southern Ireland, but still without it. though we are promised concessions in the the coursing fixture at Caherdavin was well near future. But no matter how improved the mail service may be, the aeroplane comes out on top in more senses than one. There would be a great saving in point of time, so that where really important letters were concerned the air service would be fully availed of, as a business man in Dublin or Belfast could in the morning communicate with London by "air," and have a reply before nightfall, And, Killeran Terrace, on Tuesday morning. The dedoubtless, the time would come when the provinces would also benefit by shock to his many friends in the city. He was the linking up of the scheme with th country districts. At present the vista that is opened up to us is an interesting one. Apart from mails there is the matter of passenger traffic, and the possibility is suggested that in the near future the Dublin o Northern business man will be able to leave his office in the morning, travel by air express to London, Birmingham, or Liverpool, and return to his home the same evening. And so also with regard to the London commercial traveller. who has urgent business to do with this country. It is also said that an air service between Edinburgh. Glasgow, and Ireland is under consideration. Our forefathers would rub their eyes with amazement were even the possibility of an air service so much as hinted at. But we live in an age of marvellous scientific development, and it

The Archdescon of Dublin presided at a meeting on Wednesday of the Executive Committee of the Bishop of Limerick Fund. The Dean of Christ Church, hop, secretary, and the Rev. W W Dungan gave favourable reports of the progress of the movement. It was arranged to close the subscription list on the 31st inst. and to make the presentation to the Bishop, Right Rev. H Vere White, M.A, in the boardroom of the A.P.C.K., 37. Dawson street, Dublin, on Friday, 6th January, at 3.30 o'clock, when the Archbishop of Dublin will preside, and will be supported by the Provost of Trinity College.

BOISTEROUS WEATHER,

A violent gale visited Limerick and district on Tuesday night, and was accompanied by a drenching downpour, which hurried pedestrians off the streets at an earlier hour than usual. The wind was from the north-west, the point from which it has been blowing since Monday. Reports show that little damage was done to property, and fortunately no accidents appear to have occurred. In Thomondgate a small look-up shop the property of Mr Sexton, had the chimney stack blown through the roof with little consequent damage. Ships arriving in port report heavy weather on the western seaboard. The Shannon presents a awollen appearance as the result of the heavy downfalls, and the weather remains unsettled.

CORPORATION COMMITTEES.

There was no meeting of the Corporation Committees held last night fo consequence of the Xmas holidays, and a circular to this effect was sent to the members yesterday morning.

MR P FRANKLIN. The death, which we record with regret, need not surprise us if a regular system of occurred at his residence, Patrick street, in Tuesday of Mr Patrick Franklin at a rather advanced age. The deceased had been engaged for a long number of years in the grocery and spirit business in the city, where he was wellknown and respected. He was for some years a member of the Limerick Corporation prior to the passing of the Local Government Act, 1899, and in this connection he represented the citizens with fidelity and trustworthiness. The late Mr Franklin was a great favourite with his fellow citizens, who regret his death and sympathise with his family in the affliction that has befallen them.

THE LATE MR JOHN C. HOLLAND

The late Mr John Callanan Holland, a veteran journalist, whose death at Upper Gladstone street, Clonmel, we approunced in .u. last Saturday's iseue, had reached the fine old age of 90 years, for for y years of which up to his retirement in 1911 he was oblef of the reporting steff of the "Clonmel Chropicte." He was a native of Cork city, and a man of extraordinary power and vitality. He was studying medicine originally, but subsequently gave it up and turned to journalism. He was connected with the old "Cork Daily Herald" for a long time, and had been Editor of the "Limerick Chronicle" for some years. In his capacity of Editor he was reporters in the country in his day. But his capacity was not confined to this particular, branch of his profession, as he was an all-round, able journal st. He was kindjustly esteemed and respected in whatever circles he moved. Socielly, he was most entertaining. and his reminiscenses of his long connection with newspaper work from the days of the Liberator were always interesting and educative to his young journalistic friends, in whom he evinced a paternal concern. In the older circles of Irish journalism, where he was well and favourably known, the news of his death has been received with genuine feelings of regiet.

The late Mr Holland was a nopher of the late Father Callanan, a former P.P of (l'ntarf, and a relative of the poet Callanan (author of Gougane-Barra). He was a brother of late Dr Jas Holland. of the North Infirmary, Cork, and of the late Mr Denis Helland (Sch. Q.C.C) formeile proprietor cf "The Ulsterman," Beifast, and founder and proprietor of "The Irishman" newspaper, and "The Shamrook" magazine, Dublin The latter was author of the novels "Donat Dun O'Byrne," "Ulick C'Donnell." "Pardoned, yet Guililezs." and the brochure "The Priest in the Dark Ages." Mr Holland was upole of the late Commander Hel and, C.B. C.M.G. C.I.E. Rejection of Treaty Must Lead to

Preaching in the Eonis Cathedral on Christmas Day the Most Rev Dr Fogarty said that their Christmas joy was sadly overshad swed by the differences which had developed amongst their brought the country to the brink of a precipice. Let the people have no mistake about it, the war of such a destructive character as would lay Ireland out dead in a very short time. " If indeed the country wants war," continued his Lordship, " and war, be it observed, not for any advance in a Bank Holiday, there was quite a large number | the Treaty powers, but for the pleasure of writing external association' over the door, that picture houses claimed a big share of popular any rate, will take no responsibility for such a policy, which I consider would be On Tuesday, which was also observed as a Bank | national madness. But the country does not want war, nor does it want the rejection of this Treaty. The country has made up its mind definitely that this supreme question must be settled by reason and commonsense, and not by heroles. The discussions in the Dall, however, revealed a disquisting fact-I mean the callous disregard openly avowed by some Deputies for the national will and the wishes of their constituents on this awful question. "In my opinion that position is wholly indefen> sible and morally wrong. It is a negation of representative government. "No man or group of men has the right to lead the country into a ruinous war against the considered judgment of the nation. It a Deputy finds himself, in such a decision as is now at stake, conscientiously in conflict with what he knows to be the national will, his duty is very

"I would solemnly impress on the people in their private dispushions of this subject not to talk lightly or bitterly, but calmly and deliberasequences involved in our decision."

Mr Lloyd George and the Treaty.

Mr Lloyd George in a message regarding the Irish situation says that no British statesman could consider any proposal involving Ireland O'Brien's Game Ball III being out of the Empire. The Treaty would give Ireland membership of the League of Nations. Not even merely the rejection, but even the alteration of the Treaty by Ireland or Great Britain would render it null and void. It is the intention of the British Government to hand over without delay their responsibilities to the Irish Provisional Government, following the ratification of the Treaty.

A Central News message from Dublin speaks of optimism amounting almost to certainty that the Treaty will be ratified, and the correspondent all-ges that an agreement to that effect has been

Limerick and the Treaty

A special meeting of the Limerick Chamber of Commerce is convened for 12 o'clock to-morrow to consider the proposed Peace Treaty as affecting so greatly the commerce and industry of the country. It is understood that the city Trades Council will be represented at the meeting, also the Employers' Federatico, and the views of the meeting on the subject, which is of vital importance to the well-being of the nation, are awaited

The Limerick County Council meets on Saturday, and although the agends contains no allusion to the political situation, it is the general opinion that the Treaty will be discussed and the views of the members elicited. In the city, conviction in favour of ratification is growing amongst all sections.

LABOUR AND WAGES Prospects for the New Year.

The Press Association's Labour Correspondent writes ... The Christmas season has seldom passed without its crop of labour troubles or runiours of orises, but it is a good augury for the New Year that Christmas, 1921, has been freed of soares in the industrial world. The labour outlook for the coming year, in the opinion of these well able to standpoint more than from any other that the of Doblin (Dr Gregg), Most Rev Dr McRory, heart is deen at this period for a considerable time past, and a better feeling exists between employers and workers. Wegis have some down in many trades under s'iding scale arrangements withithe cost of living, and in other big industries, such as the engineering and shipbuilding, wage cuts have come into operation by agreement. The reductions of railway freight rates for coal, although not as great as had been hoped for by the industries mainly concerned, will almost certainly stimulate the Iron and steel trades.

The revival in the coal export trade has brought a glimmer of hope at last in some of the large mining districts, and there are those in authority who believe that the worst is over, and that the depression is at length passing. Better times for the miners will almost automatically bring a measure of improvement for other classes of workere. From January lat the railwaymen will lose another 4s per week under the sliding scale. The basic rates are fixed under the national agreement, and with regard to the permanent standard rates, an inbrease of at least 100 per cent on the average pre-war rates is, generally speaking, assured. There can be no reduction of those rates under the agreement, however much the cost of living may go down. So far there has been no indication of any intention by the railway authorities of England and Wales to press for a reduction of the standard rates, and there is hardly likely to can still be made under the sliding soals. Some uneasiness has, however, been caused by the date by negotiations with the trade unions to bring railway wages and working conditions more into harmony with the industrial position."

The railway unions are content for the present to accept the position as it is. The only part of the country where there is agitation among the railway workers is in Spotland, where proposals have been tabled for a reduction of wages and an increase of working hours, involving the abolition of the eight-hour day, to which there is streuuous opposition. The question will be fought cut before the National Wage's Board early in the New Year, and the result may be of importance to the railways of the country generally.

The dockers next month will have to face further wage out, bringing their daily minimum down to 13s. A big tussle on the builders' 44-hour week is apticipated in the middle of January. The tramway workers' dispute over the guaranteed week has been referred to a special Committee of the National Industrial Council, which reports in February. The tramway authorities desire an arrangement which will enable them to cope with the heavy traffic in the "rush" hours, and in practice they declare that the guaranteed week has proved impossible. They have no intention to interiore with the normal working week.

THE RUSSIAN FAMINE NATIONAL APPEAL,

PRESIDENT-The Right Hon THE LORD MAYOR OF LONDON. CHAIRMAN-The Right Hon THE LORD EMMOTT, G.C.M.G.

20 Million Peasants are Starving to Death:

The cause is simple. Three inches of rain fell in the valley of the VOLGA between October and June. The normal rainfall is 14 lunhes. The crops were burned up. Locusts gleaned what the DROUGHT had left. The cattle were slaughtered for lack of food.

In a Region Bigger Than France There is No Food Left.

The peasants are baking a bread composed of withered grass or powdered bark. Cholera raged in the Summer. Typhus has come with the cold. In the towns the RUBBISH CARTS GO ROUND TO COLLECT THE DEAD BODIES OF CHILDREN.

Seven years of war and civil war has reduced Russia to ruin. Unless we come to the rescue this stricken population will perish

WHAT SHALL WE

Our agents, members of the Scolety of Friends, sre at work in the Samara Province. They have EIGHTEEN MONTHS' EXPERIENCE of Relief work in Soviet Russis. Their record shows that the fears of robbery and misappropriation are baseless. In all that time they LOST ONLY ONE-HALF OF ONE PER OENT. OF THEIR STORES.

Be sure that your gifts will be distributed under the EYES TRUSTWORTHY BRITISH WORKERS.

The Russian Famine Relief Fund and the Save the Children Fund wish it to be understood that they operate in different parts of the Famine Area and neither compete nor overlap in the distribution of of relief. There is only too much room for both.

FOUR SHILLINGS A MONTH WILL SAVE A LIFE

The appeal of this Fund is signed by the Archbishop of Genterbury, the Lord Chancellor, the Prime Minister, Cardinal Rourne, Mr Asquith, Mr Clynes, and Bir A. Stapley (British Red Cross Seciety).

Donations (large or small) are urgently required, and should be sent to above object was held on Wedne day last. The Mayor, Alderman W Fi'z erald, occupied the Griffin, Dr Kane, J.P; M R Ryan, JP; T B Jones, J T M'sheehy, and 8 Hastings, T.C. The Mayor expressed his anxiety that the project of raising a statue to the memory of the illustrious Sarafield should now be earnestly resumed, that he had little doubt if the patriotic spirit of the city and adjoining counties were appealed to, a ready response would be given, and now that they had recommenced their labours for this great national object, he trusted that nothing would ocour to lutercupt their progress in future, and that there would be no relixation of effort until the project had reached its realization. BCIENCE NOTES & NEWS

THE VOLCANORS OF THE MOON.

Among the strange names bestowed by old Sheervers on the lunar markings, is that of the Mare Imbrium, assigned to a vast fairly level region, although there is certainly neither sea nor rainfall there, nor, as far as can be told, did they ever exist. It lies in the northbast quadrant, the largest of the dark patches, and spreads over some 1,000 by 450 miles. Besides numerous huge extinct volcanoes, measured by miles, it is peppered over with oraterlets no larger than our own volcanoes. To test how far the new photographs went be-yond previous records, Mr. W. Goodscre, in the Eighth Report on the Moon to the British Astronomical Association, has made a plate 700, whereas only 400 are recorded on the best of our previous maps, the result of years of labour. Anyone with a good binocular should use it on the moon. They will be surprised and delighted at the beauties diselosed.

Bixby 4 12 3 OCEANS OF FLAME IN THE SUN, We read at times of great sun-spots and wast electrical disturbances which frequently secompany them. A writer in John o'

London's Weekly says: The man who took his bit of smoked glass Bradford 5 11 12 Into the back garden during the spot period Gwilt 6 11 12 new only a dark or black blotch lying across part of the shining disc of the sun. He may be surprised to hear that this stuff-whatever It was was not black, or even dark. It was hundreds of times more brilliant than the full moon on a clear night; it was as bright as a powerful are lamp. But the golden disc of the sun is an ocean of fiery metals at so fleres a temperature (7,000deg.C.), and so blindingly luminous, that the matter of the spot seemed dark by comparison.

A great British astronomer of earlier days, Herschel, thought that a sun-spot was a great rent in the shining clouds which surrounded the body of the sun. He thought that through this rent, or hole, we caught a glimpse of a dark, cool surface far below the clouds, and that there might even be living things on the O Be 1 4 11 7 surface! We have gone very far since therebel's time. We can tell that this Kemp 3 10 7 black material of the spot has itself a Panorama, Mr M Hartigan M Hartigan 3 10 2 compensture for beyond that of a cauktron of Cambridge Prince, Mr J Owen C Leader 3 10 2 molton iron.

A WONDERFUL INSTRUMENT. There is a wonderful instrument used in Davey 5 12 9 modern astronomy with the most marvellous Bennett 6 12 12 | capabilities. It will analyse a red stain on a A Scott a 12 0 murderer's coat as confidently as a chemist Stratton 6 12 0 san, and it will, with just the same case, Gore a 11 2 analyse the incandescent metals of the sun Pope a 11 2 and the sun-spot. Indeed, the modern astronomer has so far perfected this instrument that H Harrison 6 10 11 and examine at his leisure any single part or Hastlogs 6 10 11 any particular level in the fiery wrack of Hastings a 10 11 gases and metals. He can see mighty flames Pools a 10 11 of red-hot hydrogen gas, so large that they would stretch from the earth to the moon, soaring upwards at more than 50,000 miles an hour. He can see spurts of glowing metal shoot up to a height of 100,000 miles and fall back within an hour in a shower of liquid fire.

A SUN-SPOT'S EFFECTS. And then he begins to understand how sun-spot can affect the earth across the tremendous abyss of space. All round the edges of a sun-spot are vast flames and fountains of the fiery metal of the sun. Often they are as broad as the earth, and they flame out with a speed two hundred times greater than that of a rifle-bullet. We know, of course, that matter at this high temperature gives off floods of those tiny particles, the "electrons," of which all atoms are composed. We know from experiments that these marvellously small and marvellously energetic little particles can travel at more than 100,000 miles a second.

THE "NORTHERN LIGHTS." The electric "current," as we call it, me our wires is, we now know, a flow of electrons; and we are no longer surprised that the flood of electrons from the sun can interfere with it. Even the beautiful and mysterious "northern lights," or aurora, begin to be intelligible. It is probably a vast part of the stream of electrons from the sun drawn towards the earth's magnetic pole, and in its fierce rush lighting up the rarer regions of the atmosphere. We cannot as yet trace any definite laws of the sun's influence on the earth, but we may say that, since the sunspot always has this fringe of fiery eruptions, hurling myriads, of electrons across the abysses of space, we are at last on the track of the connection between spots and weather. What the sun-spot really is astronomers candidly confess that they do not know; but they are nearer agreement than is generally supposed. Everything points to the fact that Powell a 11 2 the relatively dark mass which we call a spot is an immense ocean of metal-vapour cooler than the rest of the sun. In the centre of it we can trace a downward rush of the cooler vapour from the higher parts, with mighty whirlpools stretching across the sun. It looks as if the weight of this ocean of cooler vapour causes the great "splash" of fiery metal round its edges that sends the showers of electrons across space. A HEN THAT CHANGED COLOUR. This is the story of a hen that was originally blue, but at last accounts was anowy white. The change she effected by the simple process of exchanging a few blue feathers for white ones every time she moulted. In the intervening period, of course, she was mottled, a little whiter and a little less blue at every moult. But the oddest part of the tale, which is not one of H. G. Wells's "Thirty Strange Stories," but a matter-offact contribution to the Journal of Heredity, Washington, by W. A. Lippincott, is that after the hen had turned completely white she still bred as if she were blue. In other words, she is "genetically a blue Andalumian," although perfectly white. Which is like saying that a white man may have negro shildren because he is "genetically black," and would seem to be merely a recital of the facts in technical terms, without explaining thom, Says Mr. Lippincott: The particular interest in the case in hand Brises not alone from the fact that the subject changed colour, but that in addition her assestry and breeding performance are known-"When Blue Andalusians are mated with white-splashed, in the ratio of 1 to 2 to 1. The white-splashed individuals are splashed with blue, and sometimes referred to as blue-"During the spring of 1917, before the heat had exhibited any tendency towards a colour from the University of Wisconsin flock. But five chicks were hatched, of which one was blue-splashed and four were blue, the theovetical expectation being 1.25 splashed, 2.50 blue, and I 25 black. "The following year, 1918, while changing to white, she was mater with a White Wyan-Notte. Twenty-eight chicks were hatched, of which thirteen were blue and fifteen were black. "The next breeding season, 1919, after she had become pure white, she was mated to a

White Plymouth Rock. Twenty-five chicks

change, she was mated to a Blue Andalusian were hatched, of which seven were blue and eighteen were black. "It is evident that the hen, though enowywhite, was continuing to breed as a Blue Andalusian. A generally 'recessive' white female mated to the White Plymouth Rock used would have produced only white chicks, Other possible combinations might be sugpested, but none fits the case except the assumption that she is genetically a Blue Andalusian, though a beautiful snowy-white appearance."

A REMOTE OF STARS. In a recent study of stars by Mr. Harlow Shapley, of Mount Wilson Observatory in California, it is pointed out that the great star cluster in Hercules consists of tens of thousands of stars more stars than we can see in all the sky with the naked eye-and that it is more than 8,000 times further away than the nearest star now known. Light requires eight minutes to travel the 93,000,000 miles from the sun to the earth, but it must travel more than 2,000,000,000 times as long to reach us from the Hercules sheter. The duster's distance is about 36,000 light years; that is, its light takes about that number of years to reach us. The mass of the whole cluster is probably ta excess of 100,000 suns, yet the cluster as a whole seems to be moving at far over a hundred miles a second. Compared with the great star clusters, our stear system appears insignificant, and our
