FAMILY HISTORY.

Viscount Guillamore belonged to a family long resident in Co. Limerick, the O'Gradys of Kilballyowen, Bruff.

It is said the first of that line came from the Co. Clare some 800 years; ago and acquired extensive landed property through marriage with 5th he heiress of O'Kerwick, chieftdin of the name. They have been in occupation of Kilballyowen right down the centuries. By marriage and otherwise members of the line succeeded to other estates in the county, and it is noteworthy that; through all the political storms of succeeding periods, they managed to retain their properties, and at times added to them. In the 18th century, Standish O'Grady, a son of The O'Grady of Kilballyowen, married Honora, daughter and heiress of Jeremiah or Darby Hayes, of Cahirguillamore, a few miles away, and through her acquired that property. Their second son, Darby, was High Sherieff of the county in 1785. He was married to Mary, daughter of one James Smyth, and in 1766 a son named, Standish was born to them. He was bred to the law and proved a successful barrister. He was Solicitor-General in 1803 and as such appeared for the Crown at the trial of Robert Emmet. He figured in many notable cases on the criminal and civil courts. He was later raised to the Bench and became Chief Baron of the Exchequer.

SERVED AT WATERLOO.

His eldest son and heir, Standish O'Grady, born in 1792, served as a junior officer at the battle of Waterloo (1815) and in a letter to his father, the Chief Baron. suplies an excellent man-on-the-spot account of the battle and events leading to it. He says he and another officer went into events leading to it. He says he and another officer went into Brussels on June 15th and went to the Duchess of Richmond's ball (immortalised by Byron), and were about to take partners when intelligence announced that the French, under Napoleon, were advancing. The officers were immediately ordered to their posts and the subsequent proceedings are matters of history.

The Chief Baron retired in 1831 and was raised to the peerage of Ireland as Baron Rockbarton and Viscount Guillamore. He died in 1840, and was succeeded by his

The application was made by Mr. Wm. Binchw. B.L. (instructed by Mr. T. E.& O'Donnell, solr.).

Mr. M. M. Pbwer, State Solicitor, said that the Garda Authority Mr. D. G. O'Donovan, solr.. who apeared for the Limerick Licensed Traders' Association, said that he would shorten Mr. Binchy's time by saying that the objection which was making would not be strenuous.

OBJECTION NOT SPECIFIED Mr. Binchy replied: "Now that Mr. O'Donovan has said that, he should disappear from the picture." None of the grounds specified in the Act had been set out in the objection.

Asked what the nature of the objection was, Mr. O'Donovan said that his clients were perfectly satisfied that the applicants were a genuine sporting organisation but the only objection was suitability of the premises.

Dominick Dinneen gave evidence that the club was located in Thomond Park and the premises were suitable.

ROYAL

Day after day and night after night for the past nine years, American cities have been the target for long-range bombers, drilling unseen through the skies at tremendous altitudes. Yet, few people across the nation have been aware of the operation, though that's not as strange as it seems. For those planes belong to the U.S. Air Force Strategic Command, and the bombs with which they have "destroyed" every major industrial area in the country have never left their bomb bays. The "raids," the Strategic Air Command's method of keeping its planes and men constantly trained to combat conditions, have been until recently the most carefully kept secret of the decade.

But now the secret is out—in as grippingly authentic a presentation as the operation itself. Beginning next Monday, Paramount's thundering drama of the most potentially destructive striking force the world has ever known, "Strategic Air Command," will roar across the screen of the Royal Cinema.

The tremendously vital film, which stars James Stewart and June Allyson, offers a sensational bonus of four top-flight co-stars as well: Frank Lovejoy; Barry, Sullivan, Alex Nicol and Bruce Bennett, and a superlative group of featured players.

The Air Force's Strategic Air Command with which the picture deals, has a mission unlike that of any previous service branch.

weapons, the A-and the H-Bomb, its purpose is to remain so strong, so alert and well-trained, that no nation will dare to attack. And if an attack should come, the Command must be ready at an instant's notice to retaliate at any point on the globe. That purpose demands super-planes and superment to fly them. It is of these incredible planes and astounding men that "Strategic Air Command" treats, with results that all advance reports have tabbed in the service of the control of the command.
