IRISH NATIONAL AID ASSOCIATION

ESTABLISHED MAY, 1916.

To Provide for Those in Dublin, and in Certain Other Parts of Ireland, who Have Suffered as the Result of the Recent Insurrection.

AN APPEAL.

No doom of law condemns to penal and death the relatives of imprisoned men, or the families of the sentenced Dead.

The voice of justice bids that injury shall be inflicted upon the innocent.

Give a poor man a home to comfort those who mourn, to assist those who are bereaved, and to protect the fallen.

Many are the mourners in Ireland to-day, many are the bereaved, many are the children fatherless, many the homes made desolate.

Other Associations have charge of the question of general distress, and not its specific urgent claims.

Our Association appeals for immediate and national aid on behalf of another class, not included there—the destitute families of some three hundred men who, during the Insurrection, of fifteen executed by Courts Martial, of one hundred and thirty condemned to penal servitude, of two thousand six hundred and fifty deported without trial, and of about four hundred awaiting sentence of Courts Martial. In all, there have been over four thousand two hundred cases of imprisonment, now diminished by two hundred cases of released captives adjudged innocent, but not compensated for their imprisonment.

It adds to the urgency of the appeal that many of these have been deprived of their employment, and that some of the female relatives of deceased men have, through entirely criminal conduct, been heartlessly dispossessed from their occupation, and deprived of their livelihood.

Shall the value of Justice, then, be unheard, and the innocent be compelled to suffer injury without sympathy and without redress?

The soul dictates of Christianity beseech that they who know mere shall obtain mercy on the great day of perfect Justice.

We make our appeal to all honest hearts, whose noble compassion can reach over every obstacle to relieve wretchedness, to comfort that they may co-operate in this merciful and righteous work. For the sake of our Nation, and for our own, so that the high repute for justice shall be transmitted by our generation unimpaired to future and happier times.

The Insurrection Inquiry

Our experiences have taught Ireland that she has little to hope for from Royal Commissioners, which were once aptly described by the Most Rev D' O'Donnell, Bishop of Raphoe, as "instructions for the permanent abiding of questions that are ripe for solution. It is more than likely that the Inquiry into the circumstances of the recent insurrection will be found to belong to that general category comprised in the words of the distinguished and patriotic Prelate mentioned. In the first place, its terms of reference were too limited, as they allowed no scope, as in all justice they should, for an examination of the facts connected with the movement that was really the fountain-head and origin of the Easter Week revolt. Ireland can have little confidence, indeed, in a Commission that is set up to inquire into the causes leading up to the Dublin outbreak but is hindered from any consideration of the rebellious movement of Sir Edward Carson and his Covenanters.

It is quite obvious that but for the actions and threats and declarations of the latter there would have been no Irish Volunteers and consequently no such proceeding as took place in the Metropolis could be possible. That being so it is obviously and positively unfair that the propaganda of which the Curragh mutiny was an incident should not go home to fall all its details by the Hardings Commission. But taking the evidence already given at the inquiry, such as it was, it is difficult to say the least, to see what great practical advantage can be gained from it. The only useful purpose it can serve, to all appearances, is to further emphasize the utter collapse of the Dublin IRA and the extraordinary bliaise of a certain class of men who have been occupying high positions of authority in this country for years. At the last sitting in Dublin Sir John Ross, of Blarney, formerly Chief Commissioner of the Dublin Metropolitan Police, was the first witness examined. His evidence on the occasion was as follows: "I will speak a programme sparkling with wit and humour, containing many a wry smile. They come with a most extensive repertoire of original songs, duets, trios, concerted items, scenes and burlesques, and a complete revue, and their entertainment is sure to be worthy the largest measure of patronage and to be highly appreciated.

City Police Court

The cause for hearing on Saturday at the City Police Court, at which Mr P. J. Kelly, R.M., attended. At the same Court to-day the charge sheet was also a blank.

More War Victims

The casualty list published by the British Official Press Bureau on Friday night announced that Private J. D. Keane, an Artillery Fusilier, son of Limerick City, has been killed in action. It also shows that the following Limerick men, all belonging to the same regiment, have been wounded:—Sergeant T. Egan, Privates J. Dickson, E. Nealon, P. O'Brien, and F. Ryan.

Open-Air Musical Treat

A musical band, headed by a band master, from the Tipperary Society, decorated a splendid selection of music at Barrington's Pier yesterday afternoon. Despite the very pleasant weather there was a fine attendance and the local bands and choirs gave a series which they highly appreciated, and on which the conductor and members of the band are to be warmly complimented.

St Saviour's Choir

A special meeting of St Saviour's Choir, the following vote of condolence was proposed by Mr. Hugh Hayes, organist, and members of St Saviour's Choir, Limerick, tendered to the Very Rev Father Powell, O.P., Drogheada (late Prior St Saviour's, Limerick); our sinners and earthly sympathy at the great loss he has experienced in the death of his dearly-loved mother."

Film Picture Programme

A really fine programme of pictures will be submitted twice nightly this week to patrons of the Galway. Amongst the films to be shown to-night and tomorrow night will be No. 25 of "The Exploits of Khan," while the outstanding feature will be the brilliant comedy "South West Dursey," in which the Queen of the West is 6d lower. The Liverpool material will increase the weight of the 4d local.

Potatoes on Public Land

Mr Conlon Hill, a member of the Working Town Council, has given notice of the following resolution:—"That all suitable land owned by the Corporation be broken up and planted with potatoes at the earliest possible date, the cost of which will increase the weight of the 4d local.

Snowfall in June

Snow fell at intervals in the Glan district of Co. Limerick, when a abnormal summer weather has prevailed since the 1st of June, writes our Glan correspondent. Snow frosts are experienced nightly, while heavy showers of rain and strong winds, with a chill atmosphere are daily in evidence.

Humour and Melody

This evening at 8.30 "The Gipsy" a clever comedy of seven high-class London artists, will open a week's engagement at the Theatre Royal. They will present a programme sparkling with wit and humour, containing many a wry smile. They come with a most extensive repertoire of original songs, duets, trios, concerted items, scenes and burlesques, and a complete revue, and their entertainment is sure to be worthy the largest measure of patronage and to be highly appreciated.

City Medical Vacancy

The Limerick Board of Guardians will, at the meeting on Wednesday next, proceed to elect a medical officer for the Limerick No. 2, recently vacant by the resignation of Dr. P. Graham, lately transferred to the No. 1 area in succession to Dr. J. F. Smith, retired medical practitioner. It is anticipated that a salary of £200 per annum shall be reached, after an approved service of 20 years, with the usual increments. A number of candidates, including one from the Assembly class who dealing with matters having any connection with Nationalist affairs in Ireland, in effect he sought to justify the arms-running on the ground that, as he put it, "the necessity with which the landing and distribution was contested testified to the fact that those importers did not desire to come into collision with the police." For the fourth year running on the other hand he had nothing in the way of a word of excuse or palliation. "The course adopted by those who had arms at Howth," he declared, "was different from other cases, because the landing was done to Howth quite accidentally." In other words, Sir John Ross appears to justify what he regards as an illegal act because it was done with "accident" and condemns an exactly similar act because those who performed it happened to be caught before they had their work completed! By developing this theory a little further we can easily arrive at the amazing dictum that a man who flies a safe is fully justified and excused for doing so if he has managed to escape with his booty without being caught in the act of taking it. Of course it would be ridiculous to suggest for a moment that Sir John Ross's view of the ethics of this matter of arms-running was in any way distorted by reason of the fact that the rifles landed at Largs were intended for the Carson Volunteers. But to any unprjudiced mind it seems clear that in all equity it'll be permissible for one set of men to get in arms to oppose the will of Parliament, as expressed in the Home Rule Act; it should be perfectly allowable for another set of men to get in arms subsequently to uphold the threatened Constitution and the law of the land. That, however, is the way in which plato day-day people look at the matter, and it must be remembered that the "superior" mind of the Assembly Party views these things in a different light altogether. The Insurrection Inquiry will doubtless do some good in so far as helps to unmask the differential treatment meted out to Nationalists Ireland under the system of Castle and Ascendancy rule in this country, but beyond that we see no prospect of its having any more useful or tangible result.

MALICIOUS INJURY CLAIMS
AT ENNIS QUARTER
SESSIONS

Number of Interesting Cases

At the Ennis Quarter Sessions on Thursday evening, County Court Judge Bodkin, K.C. took up several cases for compensation for malicious injuries.

The adjourned case was a claim by Mrs Dillon, of Lough, Limerick, for £20 for the burning of about 40 tons of hay on February 2nd.

Mr G. Gilligan (instructed by Mr P. G. Gilligan, Esq.) for the applicant, Mr J. J. Daly, solicitor, L.I.B., was for the County Council, in opposition.

Evidence having been given, his Honor gave judgment.

Michael Fogarty, of Lough, had a claim for £20 for the throwing down and destruction of 25 or 30 yards of stone fence, topped with wire, at Grange, County Limerick, to the damage of £100.

It was agreed that the case had been withdrawn, and his honor marked it dismissed without costs, by consent.

Patrick E. Kelly, of Portroe, Kilkenny, had a claim for £20 for the throwing down and destruction of one stone pillar, two stone pillars, and a pier, all 20 feet high, at the eastern side of the county. At the additional meetings of the Rural District Councils held for making provision for the direct labour roads for the next three years, some compensation in proportion was made, but the exception of the road from Laragh to Z, which was adopted, was set aside by my estimate, which were moderate considering the high price of labour, and anything less will not be sufficient to keep the roads in repair.

On the 1st January, the direct labour scheme was well taken into consideration the inadequacy of the money available, considering more than half the money had been expended on materials and workmen.

Michael Fogarty, the father of the applicant, who is a minor, gave evidence in support of the claim; he had got this farm in the year 1912, and after he had got a lot of trouble over it, he had to give up the farm, and since that time he has had no compensation before for the burning of hay.

Mr. E. Corbett, for Mr. James Lynch, Esq., who was for the applicant.

Michael Fogarty, the father of the applicant, who is a minor, gave evidence in support of the claim; he had got this farm in the year 1912, and after he had got a lot of trouble over it, he had to give up the farm, and since that time he has had no compensation before for the burning of hay.

In reply to Mr. Daly, the witness said that he and his brother had bought this farm between them, and he had given over the half to his brother, and he had given over the other half to his brother.

Mr. G. Gilligan, Esq., gave evidence at some length as to the extent of the damage; his estimate to make good the damage was £18 18s. 4d.

His Honor dismissed a sum for two ornamental pillars, and gave a decree for £19 with £3 10s. expenses.

LATE MR. C. COLBERT, ATHEA

How He Met His Doom

Touching Letter From a Priest

One of the priests who attended the late Mr. Cornelius Colvert, of Athae, Co. Limerick, who was executed in Kilmainham, writes to the Evening Herald as follows:

Dublin, June 1, 1916.

"I have just seen in your paper, towards the end of the second news column of the front page, under the heading, "Last Moments of Volunteer Leader" it is stated that Mr. Cornelius Colvert, and joking the soldier who was firing the white cloth to his breast, to indicate his heart, he told them "his heart was far away at the moment." This version is not true, and I am sorry to say that our priest memory to give the true one. There was no joking, not even the semblance of it. Poor Colvert was far too beautiful and too reverent a character to joke with anyone in such a shameful way. I have known him better than that. It was very near to God, and to the friends he loved. What really happened was this. While my left arm linked the prisoner's right, and while I was whispering words of comfort to him, he took a bit of paper and wrote his name on it, and then added "Give me your hand now." The prisoner seemed confused, and extended his left hand. "Not that," said the soldier, "but the right, the right hand." And so, the soldier, and having taken it warmly, the kindly human-hearted soldier proceeded to gently bind the prisoner's hands behind his back, and afterward blindfolded him. Some minutes later, his arms linked in his own hands, passed by another soldier, we entered the dark corridor leading to a yard, and, halting in prayer, the brave lad went forth to die."

REPORT OF COUNTY SURVEYOR

The following report was submitted at the last meeting of the Clare County Council by the County Surveyor, Mr P. F. Doherty.

The proposal adopted at the recent meetings of the Rural District Councils were principally for the reconstruction of the old roads, repairs to bridges and culverts, construction of concrete fences and other works.

Two proposals were adopted in Sheriff for the reconstruction of the roads.

Michael Fogarty, of Lough, had a claim for £20 for the throwing down and destruction of 25 or 30 yards of stone fence, topped with wire, at Grange, County Limerick, to the damage of £100.

DOMESTIC SERVANTS' CLAIM

At the Ennis Quarter Sessions, Justice Judge Bodkin, K.C., presided, and North Faro

muir, the Executor of the late Maria

Lloyd, Esq., The Square, Limerick, was represented by Mrs Terence Leonard, widow of the late Mr. Lloyd, and son of Rev. Dr. Terence Leonard, of St. Mary's Church, Limerick.

It was also asserted that when one of the soldiers was fixing the white cloth to his breast, to indicate his heart, he told them "his heart was far away at the moment."

This version is not true, and I am sorry to say that our priest memory to give the true one. There was no joking, not even the semblance of it.

Poor Colvert was far too beautiful and too reverent a character to joke with anyone in such a shameful way. I have known him better than that. It was very near to God, and to the friends he loved. What really happened was this. While my left arm linked the prisoner's right, and while I was whispering words of comfort to him, he took a bit of paper and wrote his name on it, and then added "Give me your hand now."

The prisoner seemed confused, and extended his left hand.

"Not that," said the soldier, "but the right, the right hand."

And so, the soldier, and having taken it warmly, the kindly human-hearted soldier proceeded to gently bind the prisoner's hands behind his back, and afterward blindfolded him. Some minutes later, his arms linked in his own hands, passed by another soldier, we entered the dark corridor leading to a yard, and, halting in prayer, the brave lad went forth to die.
