Tanaiste and Limerick hubby jet off on honeymoon

By JESSICA QUINN

TANAISTE Mary Harney and her new husband, Limerick man Brian Geoghegan jet off today for their honeymoon in a secret location.

The busy pair took time out of their hectic schedule for their honeymoon and it is expected that they will be away for at least a week.

They have kept tight lipped about their honeymoon destination, only saying that they will be out of Ireland.

The couple, who keep their private life closely guarded, held a party at the weekend to celebrate their wedding which was held in secret last month.

It is reported that the newly weds received a blessing from a priest before the party.

Family, friends and neighbours wished them well and danced the night away at the Mansion House on Saturday night.

Guests included Taoiseach Bertie Ahern and Celia Larkin, and Minister for Finance Charlie McCreevy and his wife.

Mr Geoghegan, originally from the Ballysimon Road, told guests that he was delighted his family supported his marriage.

His three sons and daughter were among the guests of honour at the reception.

And there were celebrations when the Tanaiste announced she had "met the man of her dreams", in her new husband.

She wore a two piece outfit designed by Limerick designer Synan O'Mahony for the occasion.

Mr Geoghegan is a former Fairview Rangers goal keeper. He has enjoyed a successful business career and he currently holds a directorship of the Irish Business and Employer's Federation. He has also been appointed chairman of FAS.

Ms Harney and Mr Geoghegan were married on November 30 in a hush hush ceremony at a registry office in Dublin.
