

Iarla Ó Lionáird and Steve Cooney for UCH concert

Iarla Ó Lionáird and Steve Cooney will play Seachtain na Gaeilge

TWO time Grammy nominee Iarla Ó Lionáird will join with acoustic guitar virtuoso Steve Cooney to headline the University Concert Hall's Seachtain na Gaeilge programme of events.

The duo will play at the UCH on Thursday, March 14 at 8pm with special guests Zoe Conway and John McIntyre, who will themselves bring an exciting blend of eclectic fiddle and guitar music to the stage.

Ó Lionáird is best known for his unmistakable voice and distinctive sean nós style as part of the stunningly successful group The Gloaming and has carved a long and unique career in music both internationally and in Ireland. He has performed and recorded with such luminaries as Peter Gabriel, Nick Cave, Robert Plant and Sinéad O'Connor.

Cooney is best known for his development of an influential style of guitar accompaniment to traditional Irish dance music.

Other events for Seachtain na Gaeilge include a screening of The Camino Voyage and a free concert with singer and guitarist Siomha.

See www.uch.ie for more.

Fox Jaw make a welcome return with new single

ALAN OWENS

E: alan.owens@limerickleader.ie

LIMERICK band Fox Jaw are back with a new single and a tour to mark the release.

The quintet return to form with their brand new single Madeline, a modern strutting alt-rock groove anthem with hints of a New Romantics past.

The new single comes accompanied by a full Technicolor audio visual experience shot and directed by the band's drummer, Shane Serrano.

The music video follows the misadventures of a sexual predator and his prey, while Serrano pays homage to the cinematic styles of Quentin Tarantino and Tobert Rodriguez.

Recorded at Ballyhane Studios with engineer Art O'Laoire, it was mixed by Mike Gavin at Even Audio and mastered by Richard Dowling at Wav Mastering in Limerick.

Once described as 'a modern band with an old soul', Fox Jaw have a swaggering trend-shaking growl, that always keeps things sweet and melodic with an honest collection of dark pop songs.

Fox Jaw: Morgan Nolan, Ronan Mitchell, Manolis Pates, Kieran J. Sims and Shane Serrano

They released their second album, the excellent Ghost's Parade, in 2014 to much acclaim, with impressive airplay and extensive touring as a result.

They released The Black Light Vignette EP in 2016, their third EP containing the slick rock and roll number Do You Want It All.

The EP was picked up by over 30 college stations in the USA.

Fox Jaw will play Steamboat Music for Record Store Day on April 13, followed by a show at the Kasbah Social Club that night. Other dates include shows in the UK, Galway and Dublin.

See www.foxjaw.ie for more details or www.dolans.ie for tickets to the Limerick show.