

SLICK SILK

The first night of SILK at the Upperdeck in Costelloes kicked off last Friday in fine style with Stevie G from Cork making the trip direct from his slot at the opening of the Guinness Jazz Festival (see feature inside). A perfect contrast to the rougher and tougher grooves of Thursday, the Silk boys have already gained major publicity with Radio Ireland featuring them as Club of the Week.

Smooth, jazzy beats, the hippest best looking crowd we've seen out in ages and a tip top atmosphere make SILK just the place to kick out the jams for the weekend.

RICKY PARTONS

An unbelievable transformation has taken place in Augustinian Lane as the dank but loveable Mickey Martins of old has been transformed into one of the classiest gin joints in town. With loads of extra seating and a classy new bar, Mickey's is more than worth a look or three.

"It's Essential!"

Due for a Christmas or early January release is Ireland's first ever mix CD compilation, the brainchild of our very own Micky Mac the album will feature 3 CDs and the turntable talents of the country's finest; Johnny Moy and Mark Kavanagh together with Mr. Saturday Night himself. If even a fraction of the people who tune into the 2fm show every Saturday buy it, it could be one of the biggest selling Irish records ever.

Market goes Live

The Market night-club introduces their new stage area this month with all manner of wild and wonderful performers promised including caged dancers, fireeaters and snake charmers. In addition to this madness, the Market continues from Thursday to Sunday with resident DJ Conor "FogHorn" Cronin being joined by guests every Friday night.

Granddad at the Concert Hall

Fresh from being battered around by Manchester Airport police, Brendan O'Carroll's award winning play "Granddad's sure Lilly's still alive" arrives at the University Concert Hall for a three night run from Thursday 6th to Saturday 8th November. Rumoured to be O'Carroll's funniest play yet, the action is centred around a break out from an old folks home so that Granddad can find Lilly, an ahem... "Lady of the night", he "met" in his youth. Booking is at Savins and the UCH ticket desk.

High on New Society

Local Limerick boy band New Society fresh from their high profile slot at the Miss Ireland pageant have been chosen from over 20 up and coming acts to be the featured artists on the forthcoming High on Life tour. Basically a travelling night-club with the latest in sound and light, dancers and free give-aways, High on Life promotes a strong anti-drugs message for under 18's and is to be launched on 2TV later this month. For more information contact High on Life at 061 317444.

REMIX hit the big time!

Following their star studded showcase gig last month in Dublin's Temple Bar Music Centre, REMIX are in negotiation with a number of leading record companies to licence their first single, "Feel the Beat". In the meantime, the Limerick four piece are touring throughout Ireland and the UK with gigs as far afield as Manchester and John O'Groats pencilled in for the New Year.
