Limerick Post asked the bandits, Larry and Chippy Nagle, what was on their Christmas list if they had a message for the readers.

Limerick Post: Hip Hop legend Dr Dre recently sold his business empire to Co Cork, his iPhones has netted him a cool $70million counting. What product would The Rubberbandits endorse?

Rubberbandits: "We've always said this, but I'd love to endorse womens' hygiene products. Like leg wax, deodorant and tampons. Why?? What woman wouldn't buy tampons off of me?"

Limerick Post: To Larry Starr, Chippy Nagle, Mr Chrome and Blind Boy Boatclub, what is on your Christmas wish list?

Larry Starr: "A water pistol full of vinegar for my enemies."

Chippy Nagle: "A cat's testicle Van de Graafe generator for my particle accelerator."

Mr.Chrome: "A new chin up bar to tone my smooth abs, and loads of cigarettes."

Blindboy Boatclub: "The negative space on the inside of a milk bottle."

Limerick Post: Have you a message for the Limerick Post readers for Christmas?

Rubberbandits: "Don't forget to leave out scraps of bread for the man who delivers the Limerick Post. Because it's winter, the ground will be frosty and hard, the poor fella won't be able to get worms with his beak. Cheers, happy Christmas."

The Rubberbandits Christmas Party hits Dolan's on Saturday December 29.

THIS week the Macronite Crew are taking no chances as the impending end of the world approaches - they will party like its the end of the world...literally. DIE (Dance, Indie & Electronica) is the collective's occasional Thursday night blowout. Shaking things up in Dolan's Warehouse will be Adam Sixs. He has been a DIE resident on the Terrace from the beginning with his mix of bass, hip hop and house. Joining him is Ali Day Lee. They will bring an epic party atmosphere fitting for our last night on earth. Upstairs welcomes Ul's Sparkle Motion along with DIE favorites Animal Beats along with resident Olivia. The Terrace is kept moving by the lads from Elemental Music Conga & Entropy along with Macronites Dan Sykes.

DIE End of the world Party happens in Dolan's this Thursday December 20.

Parliament Square to play Cobblestone Joes

LIMERICK'S Parliament Square formed in early 2012 when singer-songwriter Brendan Markham (ex. The Driven) began working on original material in the Bishop's Palace recording studios with Karol Drea on drums and Colin Bartley (ex. Walter Mitty) on bass. They became a 4-piece band with the addition of Ross Brennan on keyboards/guitar. The band released their debut single 'Forest Fire' with a live show in Cobblestone Joes and will return to the venue this Friday December 21, an early Christmas present for their growing fanbase.
