Rusangano Family mark debut album's release with a show this Friday night in Dolan's

PERHAPS one of the most vital Irish albums of the year has been released by Limerick-based trio, Rusangano Family.

Deserved praise has been heaped on the hip-hop/electro trio for the electric and powerful Let The Dead Bury The Dead, bursting with samples from the inner reaches of producer Mynameis-John's mind and the insightful, socially engaged lyrics of vocalists God Knows Jonas and MuRLI.

The album is a shoo-in for a Choice nod and may even break Limerick's duck in winning. The trio mark the album's release with a hometown show in Dolan's this Friday night (doors 9pm, tickets €15).

THE LOWDOWN
MynameisJohn - alter ego of Clare man John Lillis, who plies his trade in Limerick - Zimbabwean born, Shannon raised, Limerick identifying rapper God Knows Jonas and vocalist MuRLI - based in Limerick, but of Togolese descent - formed early last year but have been collaborating for a number of years on individual projects. Let The Dead Bury The Dead is their debut album as Rusangano Family, rightly drawing plaudits for a powerful offering. See Dolans.ie for tickets.
