Limerick people who died in battle in 1916
A comparative study

By Brian Hodkinson

A total of 288 Limerick people fell during 1916. Of these, nine were a result of the Easter Rising, while the remaining 279 fell on the various fronts of the war or died of natural causes while in service.

Of the nine killed in connection with the Rising, only three were Irish Volunteers. Ned Daly and Con Colbert were executed in Kilmainham Gaol after the Rising, while Dan Sheehan drowned when the car he was in drove off the pier at Ballykissane in County Kerry on the way to pick up arms from the Ang. Two of nine were policemen; James O'Brien a member of the Dublin Metropolitan Police and Christopher Miller of the Royal Irish Constabulary and two in the British Army (Charles O'Gorman and Patrick Leen), while the remaining two were civilians who were caught in the crossfire (Jane Costello and Michael O'Connor).

While World War I is usually associated with the carnage of the Western Front, 23 Limerick men died on less well known fronts in 1916 and three Limerick sailors drowned. Limerick's last casualty of the Gallipoli campaign died of wounds on 5 January and was buried in Turkey, and one man died in India. Lieutenant Lee who died in France on 4 July had served in the forces which had taken South-West Africa (now Namibia) from the Germans at the outbreak of the war.

Forgotten fronts

Mesopotamia

In 1914 the British landed a force at Basra in modern Iraq to protect their oil interests, and in 1915 it proceeded to march up the Tigris towards Baghdad. After initial successes the army was forced to retreat by the Turks, and was surrounded and cut off at Kut. Despite desperate attempts to relieve the army it was forced to surrender. A new offensive in December resulted in the recapture of Kut in February the following year.

Uganda. The German strategy was to conduct a guerilla operation to draw Allied forces away from the Western Front, finally retreating into Portuguese Mozambique. By 1916 a large contingent of South African troops was engaged in the struggle and one man Private Thomas O'Brien died of his wounds on 9 September. He is remembered on a gravestone in Glin RC churchyard as well as on the war memorial in Tanzania.

The first day of the Battle of the Somme, 1 July, was the bloodiest day in British military history, but seen from a Limerick perspective September was the grimmest month when the 16th Irish Division was put into the front line. Five Limerick men died on the first day of the Somme out of 43 for July, 3, 9, and 15 September saw respectively 10, 14 and 10 killed with a monthly total of 64.

Staff Nurse Elizabeth Grace Stewart of Queen Alexandra's Imperial Nursing Service was the only female service casualty of 1916.

Looking back on 1916 the First World War had a greater impact on the people of Limerick than the Rising.
