

TE DY

by a group of 20 girls attending the centre.

The drawings depict what they do in the centre and at the same time tell people where the centre is.

"Recently we were thinking about putting up a new sign outside the centre to tell people where we are, but since the girls started painting the wall people have been coming in asking what is going on," Mr. Gerry Kirwin, youth worker at the centre, explained.

Supervisor

The girls were supervised in their painting by Ms Anne Lawlor, a student at the Limerick School of Art and Design.

The drawings show girls, typing, sewing, hairdressing, decorating and doing other activities.

"The painting scheme is part of a creative development programme, which includes creative dance and other art work," added Mr. Kirwin.

This week many of the girls are in Ballyloughran House in Liselton, near Listowel, where the mainly-city teenagers get a look at the country.

The centre caters mostly for girls. However, a few boys helped with the wall painting exercises.

More scope

Next September the centre hopes to broaden its scope and cater for more boys.

The Limerick Youth Service Centre caters for young people who have left the normal stream of secondary education. It helps to supplement the education they have received and prepare them for employment.

The problems of job application and how to comprehend the jargon of application forms are also dealt with.

The centre also liaises with city youth clubs and groups.

Prisoner's climbdown

Martin Moran, the 38-year-old Limerick born prisoner who staged a seven-week sit-out on the roof of Nottingham prison to protest his innocence, climbed down this Wednesday after it was announced that the Home Office did not intend to re-open his case.

He is serving ten years for armed robbery.

Record tote

A record tote aggregate was established at Greenpark races on Monday evening for the special invitation international between English and Irish national hunt jockeys.

The wall of Limerick: Sheila Hayes, Pallasgreen, and Pat Hayes, Garryowen, display some of their work at Limerick Youth Centre.

Tomorrow's man on Today Tonight

By EUGENE PHELAN

ECONOMICS lecturer at NIHE Limerick Mr. Pat Cox, 29, has been appointed presenter-reporter in RTE television's top current affairs programme, Today Tonight.

Mr. Cox, active in political circles, will be first seen on television in late September or early October, when the programme returns to the screen.

It is understood that he will be one of a number of new faces on the programme.

There were numerous applications for the job and he had to undergo several interviews and camera tests before being given the position.

Pat Cox

quite well, with a good first preference vote, he did not manage to get elected.

His name was also being mentioned as a possible Fianna Fail candidate in General Elections. But he was beaten for a nomination at one of the conventions.

He has worked in the past with RTE Community Radio and also hosted a political programme with a local pirate radio station.

In the last season of Today Tonight another Limerick man, Mr. Joe Little, received an award for a programme on the victims of violence due to the Northern troubles.

Home again

Robert McMahon, Lansdowne Gardens, who was taken by fire brigade ambulance to Limerick Regional Hospital this Friday after his bike and a car collided at Ballincurra, was allowed home after treatment.

Ard Scoil Ris

He has worked as an economics lecturer in the business faculty at NIHE since 1976. Before that he lectured in the Institute of Public Administration in Dublin.

A graduate of Trinity College, he also attended St. Munchin's CBS and Ard Scoil Ris.

Of NIHE he said: "Everybody here at the college has been very supportive and have wished me the best".

His NIHE post is to be kept open as he is on a 12-month contract with RTE.

"I will take it as I find it, but I am really looking forward to the challenge", added Mr. Cox who lives at 81 Ashbrook Gardens, Ennis Road, with his wife Kathy and four children.

DEATHS

CRONIN (nee Griffin)—London and Limerick, July 20, 1982, in London, Margaret, relict of Thomas, late of 37 Pearse Avenue, Janesboro. Deeply regretted by her loving sons, daughters, relatives and friends. Rest in peace. Further funeral arrangements from Griffin Funeral Directors, phone (061)45152. (c)

CLARKE (nee Kennedy)—Limerick, July 21, 1982, at Barrington's Hospital, Maureen, beloved wife of Tom, 3 Munster Terrace, O'Connell Avenue, Limerick. Deeply regretted by her loving husband; sister, Patsy O'Shea; nephews, nieces, relatives and friends. Rest in peace. Removal from Griffin's Funeral Home, Gerald Griffin Street, to St. Joseph's Church, this Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Concelebrated Mass to-morrow (Friday) at 11.30 o'clock. Funeral afterwards to Mount St. Lawrence Cemetery.

with an itinerant was revealed this lin Road.

houses
wives

medical cards does not mean they are getting it for nothing," he added.
The Government, he continued, had to get the money from somewhere, so a few pence would be put on here or there to make it up.

Doctors
Cllr. Bourke said that it was about time that medical practitioners told people: "There is nothing wrong with you, go home."
He concluded: "When this happens we will have a healthier society."

Sentimental value
A Limerick woman who had her handbag snatched in O'Connell Street has appealed for the return of some religious medals which were contained in it.
They are of sentimental value and she can be contacted at Limerick 51781.

B AQUA SEARCH

Limerick

Todds

Sale

FINAL WEEK

Asmatin