cycling.

Slattery wins at Bruff

The 50 miles massed start, which was sponsored by Bruff Wheelers at Bruff on Sunday last, was won by Mick Slattery, Limerick R.C., who made up a fine 2 miles ahead of John (Bryan) Bruff Wheelers) and Charlie O'Callaghan. With 15 miles to go, M. Slattery made a break and started to work his way clear, gradually increasing his lead, and finally won with a richly deserved victory.

Body in ditch: inquest to-day

Members of the Garda Technical Bureau, Dublin, visited Newmarket-on-Fergus, Co. Clare, yesterday afternoon and after photographing and mapping the waste part where the body of a 4-year-old Bernard McMahon of Ballyheige, Newmarket-on-Fergus was found on Wednesday evening, the body was removed to the County Hospital, Ennis.

Mr. McMahon was last seen alive in Newmarket-on-Fergus on last Saturday night. It is believed that he was struck by a motor car. Garda state that they are being helped in their investigations by a man.

The body was discovered in a ditch on the main Limerick-Ballyheigue road and on the Erina side of Newmarket-on-Fergus.

M.Asia's 1000th patient arrived from Galway

Mrs. W. O'Driscoll, Galway, arrived in the city on Saturday afternoon to receive a message from her husband, who is the 1000th patient to arrive at the new hospital. Mrs. O'Driscoll is the wife of Mr. W. O'Driscoll, who is the first patient to be admitted to the hospital.

Cycling.

Slattery wins at Bruff.

The 50 miles massed start, which was sponsored by Bruff Wheelers at Bruff on Sunday last, was won by Mick Slattery, Limerick R.C., who made up a fine 2 miles ahead of John (Bryan) Bruff Wheelers) and Charlie O'Callaghan. With 15 miles to go, M. Slattery made a break and started to work his way clear, gradually increasing his lead, and finally won with a richly deserved victory.

Body in ditch: inquest to-day.

Members of the Garda Technical Bureau, Dublin, visited Newmarket-on-Fergus, Co. Clare, yesterday afternoon and after photographing and mapping the waste part where the body of a 4-year-old Bernard McMahon of Ballyheige, Newmarket-on-Fergus was found on Wednesday evening, the body was removed to the County Hospital, Ennis.

Mr. McMahon was last seen alive in Newmarket-on-Fergus on last Saturday night. It is believed that he was struck by a motor car. Garda state that they are being helped in their investigations by a man.

The body was discovered in a ditch on the main Limerick-Ballyheigue road and on the Erina side of Newmarket-on-Fergus.

M.Asia's 1000th patient arrived from Galway.

Mrs. W. O'Driscoll, Galway, arrived in the city on Saturday afternoon to receive a message from her husband, who is the 1000th patient to arrive at the new hospital. Mrs. O'Driscoll is the wife of Mr. W. O'Driscoll, who is the first patient to be admitted to the hospital.