

moves regarded themselves. They then visited the residence of Mr. Freeth, Vokes Terrace, partook of pie and jelly, before Mr. Freeth appeared on the scene, on which one man bolted, and though chased got away; while the other was vigorously sat upon by Mrs. Freeth and tied up till a constable was fetched, into whose custody he was given.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE POLICE COURT.

Yesterday morning, at the Police Court, before Messrs. E. F. Hickson, R.M., and P. E. Bourke, the story was re-told by Acting-sergeant McGourty, who in a deposition gave the prisoner's name as John Smith (Manchester), alias Richard Keenan. The accused is a young, emaciated fellow of about twenty years, and from what the police know, they are able to connect him with other depredations.

Sergeant Welsh informed the Bench that the fellow was not known in the city, and supplemented his remarks by stating that both Mr. McDonnell's and Mr. Freeth's houses were ransacked, and 10s. taken out of the latter.

Mr. Hickson—Nothing more?
Sergeant Welsh—Yes; they had breakfast in the two houses.

Mr. Hickson—I suppose you know who the other man is?

Sergeant Welsh—Yes. He is not arrested yet.
Mr. Hickson—I suppose you apply for a remand?

Acting-sergeant McGourty—Yes, for a week.
A remand was accordingly granted.

THEATRE ROYAL.

"What Became of Mrs. Rackett."

After many days we are glad to be able to say that the season at the Theatre Royal is again commencing, and we are promised a series of engagements, which will provide theatre-goers with that amusement and entertainment to which (theatrically speaking) the Theatre Royal has long been a stranger. On Monday next, May 15th, Mr. Charles R. Stone's musical comedy company will place "What Became of Mrs. Rackett" on the stage, and on the Wednesday of the same week there will be produced an interesting and clever comedy "My Sweetheart."

FIRE AND MASSACRE IN POLAND

A terrible conflagration is reported from Poland. One hundred and twenty houses have been burned down at Chenziny. Sensational reports have also been received by private telegrams of a Jewish massacre at Skitamor, which is said to have lasted three days.

there is a brother of his—Constable John Sheahan, also an old cog-of-war man—in the "A" Division of the D.M.P.

The whole talk of the city yesterday was of Constable Patrick Sheahan's bravery and the circumstances under which he met a glorious but premature death.

He will be buried in his native place, and the suggestion has been made that he should be accorded a public funeral. This is a suggestion which we think will commend itself to popular approval.

Constable Sheahan, without a thought of personal danger, rushed from the open sunlight into a fetid sewer, rescued a couple of men, but himself fell a victim.

"Lied to save others" is his fitting epitaph, and his name will long be cherished as that of a brave and gallant man—a credit to the force and to his native Limerick.

THE FUNERAL

A public funeral from Mount Argus R.C. Church, Dublin, to Kingsbridge was accorded this morning to Constable Sheahan, one of the victims of the Dublin sewer disaster. The cortege was some miles in length, and was taken part in the Royal Irish Constabulary, Metropolitan, and other bands, which played funeral airs. The chief mourners were—Constable John Sheahan, D.M.P., brother; Miss Sheahan, sister, and Constable Hanrahan, brother-in-law.

The remains were conveyed by the 9.15 train from Dublin, for interment at the family burial place at Glin, Co. Limerick. The body was in charge of two sergeants and constables from the various D.M.P. divisions in Dublin—namely, Sergeants Clifford and Crosbie, Constables Woulfe, T. Hanrahan, T. Carr, P. Carr, J. O'Brien, J. Hurley, M. Dunworth, J. Connors, W. O'Driscoll, Thomas Fitzgerald, E. Coleman, D. Roche, T. Haugh, P. Haugh, J. O'Gorman, and Sheehan.

The coffin was of polished oak, and the breastplate, surmounted by a crucifix, contained the inscription:

PATRICK SHEAHAN,
Died 6th May, 1905.
Aged 29 years.
R.I.P.

The casket was hidden with magnificent wreaths, including a tribute from the sister and brother of the deceased. Also a magnificent wreath in the shape of a cross, 6 feet high, sent by his comrades at College street Police station; from B Division; Superintendent Lareesay and family; sergeants and constables D. Division; O'Connor and Shee, Dame street; Nursing Staff Portrane Asylum; Sergeants Collège Green Division; Mr. and Mrs. Cavey, Essex street; sergeants and constables Green street Station, men of Ferenure, constables C Division, Military Foot Police, Dublin; men of the A Division, members of the Fire Brigade; men at Clontarf Station, Guinness's Tug-of-War Team, Messrs Dunne and Byrne, men of Mountjoy Station, men of C Division, Miss Fry; his comrades at Lad Lane, Irish town police, his comrades at College street, men of the Detective Departments; from the Depot R.I.C., and a wreath without a name inscribed "loved by all."

ARRIVAL IN LIMERICK.

The remains arrived in Limerick at 1.30 p.m., and a large and sympathetic concourse assembled on the platform. Amongst them were—Mr. M. Fitzgerald, Assistant Secretary County Council; J. Forrest, City High Constable; W. M'Namara, D.C.; J. Haffernan, J. F. Halvey, M. O'Shea, B. Gough, B.C.; Captain Hayes, Fire Brigade, and staff; Mayor's Sergeants, T. Mulqueen, Pike, M. Hartigan, P. O'Connor, C. Quilligan, J. Fitzgerald, J. Shiel, and numerous others. The Mayor was unavoidably absent, having had to leave town. There was a guard of honour of the local R.I.C., under the command of District Inspector O'Hara, who placed on the coffin a handsome wreath sent by the Limerick force. The waggon containing the coffin was shunted on the Cork direct platform, and there attached to the Foynes train. All heads were uncovered, and the Sarfield Band played the "Dead March in Saul." During the interim and up to the departure of the train at 2.5 the band played the "Last Home," composed by a member of the band, and also the "Flowers of the Forest" as the train steamed out, when spectators again raised their hats. Altogether it was a demonstration of the deepest respect and sympathy.

THE ALLEGED MOONLIGHTING.

At Newcastle West Petty Sessions, the case against Patrick Curtin and William Lenihan, charged with moonlighting and assaulting

A YOUTHFUL SHOPLIFTER

(From our own Correspondent.)

At the Kilmish Petty Session on Monday a young lad named Stephen Devane was prosecuted by D. I. Conlan for stealing a five-shilling piece from the till of Hugh Sullivan, 100, Main street, and with also stealing 2s. from M. T. Ryan, Market Square, on Saturday. Mr. Kelly, solicitor, pleaded guilty of the offences, but said his father, who is a respectable man, was in hospital, and that his sister, a married woman, would take charge of him for the future. The case was adjourned for a week.

TECHNICAL CONGRESS ARRANGEMENTS.

With regard to the question of making arrangements to receive the delegates at the Technical Congress which is to be held in this city next month, it has been decided by the Citizens' Committee to effect arrangements in connection with the conference, and to appoint a deputation was appointed, consisting of A. W. Shaw, J.P., with a view to securing the sympathy and aid of the Corporation.

P.Y.M.A. TENNIS AND CRICKET CLUB.

The first "At Home" of the season was held on Saturday. There was a very large attendance of members, and the grounds were in excellent condition, a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. Mrs. Toppin presided at the tea tables. On Saturday next there will be a cricket match with Mr. McCulloch's XI. The opening games of the Croquet Tournament will also be played on an early date.

PETROLEUM DANGERS.

An action brought by the Corporation against Mr. Peter McGuire, New street, for failing to obey an order to remove petroleum from his storage premises in Doe's Road, was yesterday adjourned to first Friday in June for an arrangement to be come to between the owner and occupier of the adjacent premises. It was considered the place was unsafe and a possible danger to the surrounding property.
