prietor, Mr. Phillip Curtin. There was a very large and representative attendance at the funeral, which took place to St. Mary Cemetery, Rathkeale. All sections of public, professional and private life were represented in the cortege.

The chief mourners included —
Dr. Stanley Magner, Streatham Vale, London, and Sean Magner, Dublin (sons); Girlie Magner and Mrs. Margaret C. Scanlan (daughters), Phillip Curtin (brother).

FINED FOR UNLICENSED DOGS

Justice C. S. Kenny, at Askeaton Court on Monday, imposed fines amounting to a total of £6 on Hanna Shanahan, Carheeney, Pallaskenry, who was convicted of having three unlicensed dogs in her possession on 5th February last.

Guard J. V. Leahy, Pallaskenry, proved the summonses, and in reply to the Justice said that the defendant gave no excuse for the offences. She said, witness added, that she knew nothing about the dogs.

Justice — She will know something about them when she is paying these fines.

There was no appearance for the defendant.

PERSIAN OIL TALKS

The head of the World Bank Commission to Persia, has left Tehran by air. He had been investigating the possibility of oil exports from Persia on a large scale. He told newsmen that the talks in Persia during the past week had been held in a friendly atmosphere.
Agreement had been reached on a number of points and the views of both sides on other points had been made clear.

WIDENING OF ROAD

The road between Pallaskenry and Ballysteen, which is to be repaired in the near future to admit of a bus service, is at present being made wider by the removal of the grass margin. A large stretch has already been treated.

agricultural slums—280,000 out of 380,000 agricultural holdings—with a gross valuation of only two millions sterling, the average being little over £7; and all under £20 P.L.V.
Young people drift from these as they naturally would from urban slums, especially as they are forced to see all round them rich ranchlands, from which probably their ancestors were hunted, lorded over by his majesty, the bullock, and with little pretence even at genuine land settlement.

THE BIG HOLDINGS.

On the other hand, fertile lands to the value of 2½ million acres are in the hands of 12,000 people the average valuation per holding being £190, and that per acre being

Limerick Street Names In Irish

(To the Editor, "Limerick Leader.")

A Chara — Through the unceasing efforts of Councillor Glasgow, the first practical step has at last been taken towards making our city language-conscious. In the opinion of other Councillors, the importance of this achievement dwindles to insignificance when compared with the slight disadvantage at which Uncle Sam and Cousin Bert may find themselves, when they visit us to enjoy for a while the miserics of this "most distressful country." Let us carry their contention to its logical conclusion, and amaze our visitors with the mibature Towers of Babel which our street corners would then be.

I wonder how many advocates of the bilingual name-plates are themselves bilingual? It is, of course, to be expected that this public confirmation of the return of the "Droimeann Donn Dilis" to her rightful pastures should be greeted with the stampings and snortings of the little John Bullocks who have ever been a part of the national scene.

There is a small, bespectacled man who stands on Sarsfield Bridge, pointing to a Proclamation. I think he would willingly point his gun at some of our unilingual advocates of bilingualism.
