REPORTER searched the house last year.

A second teenager, who also cannot be named, pleaded guilty to having a Ruger SP 101 pistol at the same house on the same date. A third defendant, Gary Kelly 21, of Delmege Park, Moyross, pleaded guilty to possession of 34 rounds of different types of ammunition and possession of 11 shotgun cartridges — also at the same location. Following their guilty pleas Judge Carroll Moran remanded all three defendants in custody ahead of a sentencing hearing, which will take place on July 25.

The Hartmann collection goes on show at UL

By ANNE SHERIDAN

THE Gerard Hartmann collection of sporting memorabilia at the University of Limerick was officially opened last night by the athlete Dr Ronnie Delany and is now open to the public free of charge.

The Hartmann Collection is the most extensive personal sports collection to be available on public view in the country and contains over 500 pieces, from athletics to horse racing, from GAA to rugby, cycling, triathlon and much more.

Sonia O'Sullivan, Eamonn Coughlan, Keith Wood, Séan Óg OhAilpín and Juliet Murphy all attended the opening this Monday night, many of whom have become friends with the renowned sports physical therapist, Gerard Hartmann.

"The uniqueness of this collection is that it is a private and personal collection with each item being authentic. Each photo and artefact was given to me by a sportsperson who is or was a patient or personal friend of mine. There is a story behind each piece," said Mr Hartmann.

Some of the items in the collection include the boots which jockey Kieran Fallon wore when "Dylan Thomas" won the Budweiser Irish Derby in 2006, along with the sash which the horse won to celebrate his victory.

Séan Óg OhAilpín's jersey in the 2004 All Ireland Hurling Final, in which Cork beat Kilkenny, and the race number which Sonia O'Sullivan wore when she became the first Irish woman to win a World Championship gold medal, in the 5000m in Gothenburg in 1995, are also on view.

Mr Hartmann has now relocated the Hartmann International Sports Injury Clinic to the University of Limerick Arena but said the winning formula will not change. "Now world class athletes can avail of my expertise with the added bonus of being able to resource the wonderful facilities at the University Arena, all under one roof," he said.

Prof Don Barry, President of the University of Limerick, believes the venture is a fantastic opportunity for the University Arena and the university as a whole. "The natural combination of advanced modern facilities and high quality support services is the ideal fit, especially as UL facilitates the preparation of elite athletes for the London Olympics in 2012.
