NAME OF LACKELLY - A LEGEND

The name of Lackelley has become a legend in the history of Limerick's contribution to the Fight for Freedom during the notorious Black and Tan regime.

In the summer of 1921, the combined columns of the East, Mid, and North sections of the Black and Tan troops, under the command of Col. O'Connell, marched into the town of Lackelley, a small community in County Limerick. The IRA, led by Michael Collins, engaged the enemy in a fierce battle. The IRA forces were outnumbered but fought bravely, retreating to a position where they could deliver a deadly attack.

During the engagement, a number of IRA members were captured and taken prisoner. Among them was one of the IRA's most trusted lieutenants, Michael Reilly. He was severely wounded and left for dead in the field. However, his courage and perseverance allowed him to survive and return to fight another day.

The aftermath of this battle was marked by a convoy of vehicles carrying the bodies of the fallen IRA members. Among them was the body of Michael Reilly, who was returned to Lackelley for burial. The town was put into mourning, and a funeral was held in his honor.

Today, the name of Lackelley is remembered as a place of sacrifice and heroism. The town's residents continue to honor the memory of those who fought for freedom, and the legend of Michael Reilly lives on as a symbol of courage and dedication.

The ICMSA on Milk Levy

The proposed ICMSA milk levy would bring a significant change in the agricultural sector. The levy, which is set to be implemented, would provide a much-needed financial injection into the dairy farmers' pockets. This move is expected to boost the economy and create a positive ripple effect throughout the sector.

The levy will also encourage the development of sustainable farming practices, which is crucial for the long-term health of our natural environment. By supporting local dairy farmers, we can ensure a stable supply of high-quality milk and cream, preserving jobs and livelihoods across the region.

In conclusion, the ICMSA milk levy is a positive step towards a more sustainable and prosperous future for dairy farmers. It is an investment in our local economy and the well-being of future generations. Let us support this initiative and ensure that our dairy farmers continue to thrive.
