Tom Lawlor: a fearless and faithful Limerickman

AN APPRECIATION

MR. TOM LAWLOW of Clonamins Avenue, Limerick, one of the gallant Mid-Limerick B.R.A. guerrilla fighters who, in the glorious, tough 1916-1921 campaign, was a trusted companion of Patsy O’Malley, the Irishman, was killed in the Battle of Bridgehead late last night.

On Friday afternoon, 7th October, 1917, 300 brave men were sent to capture the Bridgehead, and 100 of them were killed in the battle.

Tom Lawlor was a man of the people, fearless in his true devotion to his country and his people.

In 1917, like hundreds of other young men of that generation, Tom responded to the call of Ireland, fought for Irish freedom, and was a leader in the Battle of Bridgehead.

He was a man of simple but true heart, and a true patriot in all that he did.

In memory of this brave-hearted Limerickman, we pay our respects to his memory and his memory lives on in the hearts of all those who knew and loved him.

Retreat, Revisited

A LONG TIME AGO, in the early 1960s, several young men set out on a journey to find their way in the world. They were searching for something more, something greater.

Their journey took them to far-flung corners of the globe, and they encountered all sorts of people and experiences along the way.

But one thing remained constant throughout their travels: their love for each other.

Years later, the group reunited, and they shared their stories of their adventures, and the lessons they had learned on their journey.

The story of their journey is told in the book "Retreat, Revisited," and it is a beautifully written account of their travels, and their love for each other.

The book is a testament to the power of friendship, and the importance of following one's dreams.
