THOMAS Ryan of "St. Jude's," Portrina, Cratloe, an avid reader of the Limerick Chronicle, contributed this picture taken in the Shannon Airport area around 1921 of British Brigadier General, C. H. Lucas. The general had been taken prisoner by the East Cork Brigade while fishing on the River Blackwater near Fermoy in County Cork and was taken by boat across the River Shannon to Clare. After being held in the Hogan home at Moyhill, the Brennan home at Smithstown and at Ernest Corbett's home not very far from Bunnratty, the prisoner was taken to the Hastings farmhouse at Tullyvarriga which is now part of the Shannon Airport estate where he spent a number of 'happy' weeks. According to his captors, he was partial to the 'drop' and was supplied with a bottle of whiskey each day. The room in which he slept was furnished with a chifionier bed and a table and the general was quite happy to pose amongst his captors for photographs. Ater being transferred from the command of the East Clare Brigade to the Limerick area where he was confined first in Clonlara House and later in a house in Caherconlish, General Lucas made his escape and afterwards paid tribute to those who kept him under guard and "looked after me well and fed me." Pictured above are, General Lucas, seated, with his captors, Michael Brennan, his brother Paddy Brennan, a cousin P. Brennan and M. Keane.
