

dark and intricate question.
ho' conscious of such force, it is notorious.
Gentlemen, to every man, who has attended to the late important debates, that Opposition constantly evaded the attack on the and of analogous precedents. A large many of both Houses evidently perceived the se of such shyness—viz. because those presents produced the only light that could be ibly thrown on the momentous subject, as such ought to be embraced in determin-the question. In short, it was the im-resistance—impotent, because impossible to otherwise, that was made by Opposition to only proof that the nature of the case ld admit, which has in the first instance in the public that decided opinion I have anced.

When the argument, Gentlemen, of a ma-tly, or even but of a trifling minority, serves turn of Opposition sticklers, how earnestly grasped—and how assiduously dwelt on & o can forget the force preached up, from mode of argument, at the period of the mmercial propositions!—The glorious minor-y was then proclaimed to be, in effect, a matity. With the logic of a minor, becoming, effect, a major, I have nothing to do, except admiring its excellence—but will the sticklers of Opposition permit me, on the present asion, to use their own weapon of a major?
Surely, on the late divisions, in both uses of the British Parliament, more decisive majorities could not have been wished.
They were more decisive and honourable, in it, with, as generally supposed, a declining mister, than double the amount would have en under the auspices of a Premier in plen-ie of power. The People evidently see and the force, under such critical circumstans, of the several late great and disinterested sorities, in both Houses, in support of the minister's doctrine of Right, and which is a ond instance in proof of that decided opinion in the public which is now urged.

The disappointed and confuted advocates of pposition would intimate, that the addressees thanks already presented to the Minister, om several of the first cities, in Great Britain, d multitudes of others now preparing to be esented, are procured by interested solicitaon. The suggestion is too great an insult to e independent spirit of the British nation to mit the most distant idea of it. But why do t Opposition procure some countering ad-resses? Is their interest with the People so low—so entirely lost, as not to be able to one poor solitary address in support of their ctrine of right? Does not this question, ited with the general addresses presented, d presenting to the Minister, exhibit a pow-ful third instance, why the public opinion is decided?

But, Gentlemen, there is an instance still re-aining, in proof of the decided opinion of e public, respecting the present Ministry, at is sufficient of itself, to speak to the coniction of mankind. The state of the public ands is the best and the surest barometer of the ublic opinion of Cabinet men, and measures. rom the apprehension of a change of Ministry, the stocks, in general, fell, and still keep ull three per cent. lower, than was experienced rior to the existence of such an apprehension.
How honourable is this universally notorious act to Opposition! In short, such a fact is ufficient, not only to decide the general opinion of the inhabitants of Great Britain, but of all good and candid people, likewise of this and every other part of the empire.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Cork, January 12. Last Saturday night or Sunday morning, the house of Mr. Francis Hore, in George's-street, was broke into by some nefarious villain or villains, and out of Bourgh's avenue, a circumstance not known since the year of the great frost in 1739.— Yesterday there was a thaw, and the ice vanished like the baseless fabric of a vision—The elements declare the glory of God, whose Almighty Power, even in the severest season, filleth the land with plenty, and the corn with increase.

The snow lies so deep on the road to Dublin, that the Stage Coach which set off last Monday could not proceed beyond Nenagh, nor has the Stage which comes in on Tuesday yet arrived.

The Dublin mail of last Monday, with the Letters for this City, (by the way of Clonmel) which should have arrived here at 5 o'clock yesterday evening, did not come in at 5 o'clock this evening, at which hour this Paper went to Press.

On Monday evening, by the ignorance of some of Mr. Phil. Roche's labouring men having imprudently lodged a great quantity of heavy Oak-plank, at the end of a Loft, and not properly dividing the weight, that end gave way, by which accident one Man was killed, and five more very much hurt.

Last Monday morning Thomas Martin was received in the Hospital, for a fractured skull of a considerable standing, from which some pieces were extracted; and same night, Darby Lemly and Patrick Hanahan were admitted; the first with a fractured leg, and a wound in the head; and the other dangerously bruised in the back—all these were received as sudden accidents.

Last night Charles Carthy, late a proctor, who lived near the Swan-Inn at Thomondgate, was drowned at the watering-slip, his body was taken up this morning: It is remarkable that his wife was drowned much in the same place, a few years ago, nor has it been discovered whether either met their untimely fate by accident or design.

The death of Mr. Nicholas Tubbs, mentioned last Monday in one of the Limerick Papers, is totally void of truth, as Mr. Tubbs is in good health.

A R E A L O B J E C T.
A Poor Widow who in the early time of Life lived in Affluence, and of one of the most respectable Families in this Neighbourhood, being by many unforeseen Accidents reduced to the lowest Degree of Indigence, having neither Food nor Covering for herself, or her three Orphans, humbly solicits Relief from the Humane and Charitable.—She refers the Public for the truth of her miserable Case, to the Rev. Mr. Goonan, the Rev. Mr. Tuohy, and Mr. James Hill Phillips, Apothecary, by whom and the Printer hereof, Subscriptions will be thankfully received.

Gregg, to Miss Stapleton, sister to Bryan Stapleton, Esq.

Died. Last Tuesday, at Killaloe, Mrs.
Leo, wife of Mr. Edmond Leo, sincerely regretted by her acquaintance, being an affectionate wife and steady friend.—Yesterday, on the North Strand, Mrs. Goggin, aged 85 years, relief of the late Mr. James Goggin, Chandler.
