DEATHS.

At Killa'o, on Monday night, Mrs. Martin, wife of Michael Martin, Esq. a lady universally lamented. The numerous poor of that extensive neighbourhood have sustained an irreparable loss in the death of a most kind and charitable benefactress.

On Sunday evening, at her house in Thomas-street, Miss Catherine Worrall, for many years Principal of an highly respectable Academy in this City; and, if a mind richly stored with every accomplishment that could reflect amiability and excellence on youth, were qualifications befitting the responsibility she so well deserved, no Lady possessed them in a more eminent degree; added to which, she in herself exemplified that grace and elegance of deportment it was her inclination to impress on others—as a valuable member of society, she lived esteemed, and died regretted.

At her father's house, in Patrick-street, Ellen, second daughter of Mr. Joseph Dwyer.

On Friday morning, the 16th inst. at Rathfarnham Convent, near Dublin, in the Bloom of Life, Anne, eldest daughter of John Therry, Esq. late one of the Chief Commissioners of His Majesty's Excise in Ireland.
 Tho' the pen is not here used to extol her many virtues and amiable dispositions, which are well known by her relatives and friends. it may be truly said, that the Grave has seldom closed over the mortal remains of more perfect worth.

On Saturday evening, at Kishikirk, in the County of Limerick, of a consumption, Miss Anastasia Green, a young Lady, whose premature death forms a source of the deepest regret to her relatives and friends, and to all who have ever enjoyed the pleasure of her acquaintance—endowed with every amiable quality that could endear her to society, her fascinating manners every where commanded esteem and admiration. The sweetness of her vocal powers gave an additional charm to the graces of her person; and, when employed in the service of her Creator, inspired devotion in the most unsusceptible heart. She awaited the certain approach of death with calmness and tranquillity, and submitted to the decree of providence with piety and resignation; and if ought can heal the wound inflicted by her removal from her dearest connexions, 'tis the well-grounded hope that she has exchanged transitory suffering for eternal felicity.

In Baggot-street, Dublin, George Gunn Cunningham, of Riversdale, County Kerry, Esq.

In Tralee, of consumption, aged 16 years, Elizabeth, second daughter of the late Mr. William Bowles, of this City.

At his house in Patrick-street, Cork, Anne, wife of Mr. Sheriff Jones, of that City.

In Enniskillen, George Bell, of Bellview, Esq.

At Clonakilty, Mary, relict of Heylen Maybury, Esq.
 Susan, wife of J. F. S. Perkins, Esq. Barrister, and eldest sister of Lieutenant-General Sharpe.

At Calcutta, Robert Haly, Esq. grandson of the late William Haly, of Ballyhaly, County Cork, Esq.

In Cook-street, Cork, Mr. John Ellis.

In Dominick-street, Dublin, Mrs. David Lynch.

At Kinsale, Anne, relict of William Hearne, Esq. of the Royal Navy.

In George's-street, Cork, John Goode, Esq.

Mrs. Coppinger, wife of Thomas John Coppinger, of Abbeyville, County Cork, Esq.

In Castlebar, Mr. John Malley, aged 84 years.
