FISHING BOAT CAPSIZED.

Youth's Narrow Escape.

About half-past eight last night two men named Thade Ryan and John Ryan, of Creagh-lane, and Michael and Patrick Hastings, 14 and 16 years respectively, put out in a cot from Crosbie-row for the purpose of fishing in the upper reaches of the river. They had only just reached Curraghgower Falls when the craft was struck broadside by a wave and capsized. The occupants were thrown into the water, and with the aid of the Ryans Patrick Hastings was taken ashore. The other boy, who was far out of reach, was carried down the stream, and kept himself afloat by means of an oar. In this position he remained until he got as far as the Shannon Rowing Club slip, where a lifebuoy was thrown to him and he was brought ashore. He was taken to Barrington's Hospital in an exhausted condition by Sergeant Lonergan, and detained for treatment.

THE CASTLEPARK TRAGEDY.

Deceased Identified.

The man who met his death by drowning in a cutting near Castlepark on Saturday night has now been identified as Timothy Dillon of Ruane, Co. Clare. Yesterday morning a man visited the morgue at the Workhouse and informed the officials that deceased was his brother. Deceased was last seen alive by his relatives on the 8th inst. when he worked as a farmhand at a place some short distance from Ruane. Since that date his whereabouts have been altogether unknown to his people, and his last employer a Mr. Clune, and the police in the vicinity having been apprised of his absence instituted a vigorous search, without avail. A description of the man who met his end near Limerick, came into the hands of the police at Ruane yesterday, which answered in every way to that of Dillon, and immediately his people were acquainted of the fact. Yesterday morning his brother travelled to the city, and, as stated, identified deceased, who was 28 years of age, and had been all his life engaged as an agricultural labourer.

the Officer of the Department, with the object of enabling the Department to satisfy themselves that the premises are not utilised for any purposes prohibited by law;

(5). The trade description "creamery" shall not be applied to any butter consigned from any premises used for the production of butter in Ireland unless and until such premises have been registered as a creamery by the Department;

(6). No butter shall be consigned from a creamery in any package or wrapper which is not marked (in such manner as the Department may approve) with the words "Irish Creamery Butter" and with a special registered mark or number to be allotted by the Department which number or mark shall vary with each creamery.

N.B.—The registration and inspection above referred to shall in no way compel any creamery proprietors to conform to any of the Department's schemes for encouraging improvement in the management of creameries; the participation in such schemes to be purely voluntary.

11. That a satisfactory standard of cleanliness in the milk supply of creameries can best be attained by a general agreement among creamery proprietors to refuse unsuitable milk.

12. That the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland should seek powers to regulate, so far as may be necessary in the general interests of the industry, the conditions under which butter, or milk for the manufacture of cream or butter, is produced.

13. That the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland should formulate and arrange in conjunction with local associations a scheme for the establishment of a special Governmental Brand for Irish creamery butter.

14. That the committees of co-operative creameries in Ireland should in every way acquire a closer acquaintance with the actual working of their creameries and the sale of their produce.

15. That the courses of instruction for creamery managers in technical and commercial subjects provided by the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland at selected centres have served a useful purpose; and that the Department, in considering the various means by which they can promote the Irish butter industry, should attach the greatest importance to the technical and commercial training of those who may be entrusted with the management of Irish creameries.

16. That through the operation of the scheme of the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland for the improvement of home butter-making, instruction should be given in the production of dairy butter, with resulting advantages to the proprietors of butter factories.

17. That it would appear that some owners of butter factories do not attach sufficient importance to the quality of butter which they buy from the farmers; and that unless owners of butter factories are prepared to encourage the production of the best class of dairy butter by paying for it at a scale proportionate to its merits, we see no possibility of Irish factory butter obtaining prices which some of the butter made on the same system in Normandy at present commands.

18. That in the course of our inquiry, evidence has been given indicating that the Reichert-Wollny number of pure Irish butter is sometimes much lower than the figure which the Departmental Committee on Butter Regulations, appointed in 1901, recommended as the limit below which the presumption should be raised that the butter was not genuine; and, that the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland should communicate with Local Authorities in Great Britain and offer to co-operate by inspection of the premises in any cases where Irish butter is suspected.

19. That the stoppage in the production of butter in Ireland during the winter season, due to the absence of winter dairying, is most harmful to the Irish butter industry; and, that having regard to the special circumstances of Ireland, we are convinced that the Irish dairy farmers would be well advised to undertake the production of milk required for the manufacture of butter during the winter months.

20. That it would materially assist to develop the trade in Irish butter direct from the producer to the consumer if parcels post rates were amended so that parcels containing, 1lb., 2lb., and 3lbs. of butter could be sent for the postage now charged for 1lb., 2lb., and 3lb. parcels respectively.

21. That as a means of supplementing the efforts of the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction for Ireland, and of existing associations, it would be desirable that local associations should be formed in Ireland for promoting the interests of the Irish butter industry; that local associations in Holland, Denmark, and Sweden at present administer to a large extent schemes similar to those which the Department in Ireland have been obliged not only to initiate, but to administer with little or no assistance; and that properly constituted

INJURIES FROM BURNS.

Accidents from burns appear to have become pretty frequent of late judging from the numbers applying for relief for their injuries at Barrington's Hospital. Through the week quite a number of such cases has been treated at the institution, young and old being sufferers. Fortunately, the injuries sustained in the several cases were not serious.

INCOME TAX REFUNDS.

In view of the non-passing of the Budget the Finance Committee of the London Co. Council decided in December last to continue to deduct income tax from the dividends on the Council's stocks at the rate of 1s 2d in the £. It is now reported that the Bank of England, by whom the dividends are paid to stockholders, state that in view of the Government's decision not to obtain in 1909-10 legislative sanction to the collection of income tax for the year, they propose to refund forthwith on receipt of a claim from persons to whom the dividends are payable any amount deducted since April 6 1909, in respect of income tax, and to claim from the Council monthly any sums due in respect of such disbursements. The committee have informed the bank that in the circumstances they agree to the course suggested.
