THE LATE COMET.

A curious paper has been read by Dr. Herschell, at the Royal Society. Dr. H. in observing the Comet in October last, noticed a highly luminous appearance next the centre of its head, which Astronomers would call its nucleus. This luminous disk, however, he found to deviate considerably from the centre, and at one time brighter than another. This led him to be more particular in his observations with longer telescopes and higher magnifying powers: these he varied from 1 to 10 and 20 feet, with magnifiers up to 600, when he distinctly discovered it to be a planetary body, which appeared so bright in the centre of the Comet, and that it was evidently surrounded by a Cometic atmosphere.— On the 16th of October, when the Comet was 114 millions of miles distant from the earth, by a series of observations and calculations, he ascertained the diameter of this planet to be 428 miles with an atmosphere subjected to the vicissitudes of the Comet.

The Easter festivities were kept up in the city of London, in the usual way. The aldermen stuffed and swilled themselves sick, and then went to bed to M'Gillveuddy, Esq. of that town—Thursday last, in Killarney, the Rev. B. Denny, of Church-hill, to Helen, daughter of Richard T. Herbert of Cahernane, Esq.

DIED.—On Tuesday last, at his house on Honan'squay, Edward Parker, Esq. after a lingering illness, which he bore with the pious resignation of a Christian.
 For 36 years he filled the situation of Town Clerk, and Clerk of the Crown, and discharged the duties of both with the most unexampled integrity. He was beloved by his friends, and is lamented by all who knew him—steady and persevering in his friendship, untainted with any mean or selfish ideas, and a strict but unbogged observer of the tenets of the established religion—mild and conciliating in his manners, he never had an enemy, nor was he ever known to calumniate his neighbour—a well spent life gave tranquillity to his dying moments, and he departed without a struggle in the 58th year of his age.

" Farewell, if worth like thine had pow'r to save,
 " Thou would'st, not yet, have visited the grave."
