

house full of bank notes, which they deliberately threw one by one into the fire. The States of Britany refuse to send any deputies, but are determined to establish their own liberty. The Court are highly offended; 25,000 thousand troops are arrived at Paris, and the rioting was not over when the last letters came from thence.

Yesterday (13) Earl Stanhope moved to have the House of Lords summoned for Monday next, when he should move for leave to bring in a bill for relief in matters of conscience.

Yesterday Mr. Wilberforce, having moved the order of the day respecting the consideration of the Slave Trade, entered very fully on that subject, and was heard with particular attention. The final consideration was postponed till Monday next.

HOUSE OF LORDS:

TUESDAY, May 12.

Their Lordships did not enter the court in Westminster-hall till one o'clock; when Mr. Grey rose, and began to produce written evidence in support of the charge relative to presents. Many documents were read, for the purpose of proving the truth of what Mr. Burke had asserted in his speech on this charge. This adduction of evidence, accompanied as it was with occasional disputes between some of the managers and Mr. Hastings's counsel, employed the court till five o'clock.

After they had returned to the house, the Peers sent a message to the Commons, purporting that they would resume the trial of Mr. Hastings on Thursday next.

They then passed several private bills, of which they sent notice to the other house.

DUBLIN, MAY 19.

It was so confidently reported last Saturday, that the appointment of the Rt. Hon. J. Fitzgibbon to the Chancellorship, had arrived, that a number of gentlemen congratulated him on his promotion; he politely returned their compliments, but assured them they were premature.—It is, notwithstanding, the general and received opinion among those who have the best opportunities of knowing the fact, that no doubt exists of that gentleman's appointment.

Whatever may be the improvement of taste and science in the sister kingdom, it is but poorly illustrated in the instance of 500 persons assembled, from distant quarters, and paying half a guinea a piece for the delicate amusement of beholding two professed suffians engaged in a boxing bout; yet such is the reigning and favourite amusement of the British gentry at present; and the very newspapers of the most fashionable circulation, occupied in singing the battles and conducting the literary disputes of those learned professors of the pugilistic art. 'Tis an happy trait of national politeness, when history and the Belle Lettres are banished the conversation of the British Beaux esprit under the name of Pedantry, and when the gutter contests of Coal-heavers, Corn-porters, Constables and Jew pedlars—occupy the conversations of the great, while their phraseology is enriched by cross buttocks, bread-basketters and all the polite lingo of the bear-garden. We hope this amiable branch of civilization will not find its way to the young gentry of Ireland, so partial to British importations.

It is worthy of remark, that there has not been one export entry made at our Custom-house since Monday last.

JOHNSTOWN SCHOOL, QUEEN'S COUNTY, 1789.

SUMMER Vacation will commence on Saturday 13th June, and School will be opened again (God willing) on Monday 13th July.—In the course of the approaching Interval, Mr. CARY's kind Employers will have an Opportunity of perceiving whether the usual vigilance of Attention has been paid to the Health and Morals of his Pupils; while, at the same Time, their Examination by some learned Friends will discover their literary Acquisitions with less Parade and perhaps greater certainty than any other more public or pompous Process, which he himself might undertake the Conduct of.—His Friends have unquestionably every Right to expect that his most spirited Efforts should be directed to the faithful discharge of the important Trust, which they have condescended to repose in him; and he will not scruple to acknowledge that, abstracted from Motives of general Duty, the respectable Patronage, with which they have honoured him, has some very peculiar Claims upon his Gratitude; as it was not only voluntarily conferred, without abject Solicitations or flashy Promises on his side; but has continued, with generous Steadiness, to resist the most insidious Allurements of interested Persons, who have exhausted all the Varieties of mean and dishonest Stratagem, in attempting to deprive him of that Favour and Confidence, which he has for twelve Years incessantly laboured to acquire, and which, he trusts in God, he will still persevere in endeavouring to merit.

Any Letters directed to him near Borris-in-Ossory, will be punctually answered.
