

W. W. Quinn was called upon to support of a meritorious young Lady. Such a manifestation of popular partiality would, at any period, be flattering to the feelings, and advantageous to the pursuits of the most elevated in the Matriotic profession; and could never be excited but by manners and merits of a very superior order indeed. As Managers of regular Theatres are always anxious to procure persons, who, according to Green-room phrase, bring houses, the services of Miss W. must, we apprehend, be speedily secured by Mr. Harris, the present Patentee. Her personal graces and elegant accomplishments render her an attractive and ornamental Actress. Of the performance we can only say, that the Melo-drama, musical Melange, and Farce, all went off so as to obtain the admiration of the audience. Miss Walpole's performance on the harp was rapturously applauded. The Officers of the Garrison, with genuine gallantry, contributed their patronage; and the fine band of the distinguished 79th Regiment, gave their cheering services in the orchestra. The audience were gratified and exhilarated by the entire entertainments. It is alike pleasing and consoling to behold an amiable girl, who has been born to prosperous fortune, nursed in the lap of luxury, and educated with refined delicacy, checking the cruelty of vicissitude by the exercise of her talents, in an arduous profession.

Meeting of the Gentlemen of Clonmel took place on the 10th inst. for the purpose of settling the accounts of Messrs. Lismore in the chair, at which made and resolutions passed. Notes of that firm passed as usual afterwards as at any other meeting.
