to raise the siege. An opinion is entertained of its be- ing Lord Wellington's intention to attack, and force his way to Cadiz. Every precaution is taken to secure the safety of our sick and wounded or to make way for others, in case of an action. Every wounded man ca- pable of being moved, is ordered from hence to Lisbon. 300 left this yesterday, and 500 are to depart to-mor- row, 1000 the day after. I am sorry to say the best of the weather is very injurious to our wounded—they are dying very fast.

From the Correspondent of Saturday.

The great length of the London Gazette has left us but little space, this day, to advert to the very interest- ing intelligence relative to the raising of the siege of Badajoz, which appeared in our paper of yesterday.— Notwithstanding its importance, we do not find that any account of it has reached this country, except that of which we are in possession. We know, however, that we can rely upon its accuracy, for it has never been our practice to lend our authority to the propagation of disastrous news upon suspicious information. A packet from Lisbon arrived at Falmouth on Monday last. The intelligence brought by it reached London on Wednesday, we may therefore expect, by the arri- val of the mail, due this day, further particulars. We are also informed, that dispatches from Lord Wellin- ton were received in London on Tuesday but their con- tents had not transpired; and, in consequence, very gloomy apprehensions were entertained that they were of an unfavorable nature.

(From the Belfast Chronicle.)

The ship Protection, Captain Bears, arrived here on Monday from New-York, which port she left the 29th May. A gentleman who came passenger in the above vessel has communicated to us the following correct statement of the occurrence which took place between the American frigate President and the British sloop of war Little Belt. This statement may be de- pended on, as the gentleman received his information from Commodore Rogers, who commanded the tri- gate, a few days previous to the sailing of the Protec- tion.

"On the 16th May saw a strange sail, about 12 o'clock; immediately hoisted the American colours, and gave chase; came up with her about 2 o'clock in in the evening, 20 miles N. E. of Cape Henry;—when within pistol shot the President hailed, the British hail- ed same time in return; the President hailed again, and returned by a shot from the sloop of war, which wounded a boy of the name of Rogers (no relation of the Commodore) on board the President. Commodore Rogers then gave orders to Lieutenant Dallas, that the moment he saw the second fire from the sloop of war he should discharge one cannon into her.—The Little Belt fired a second shot, which lodged in the main-mast of the President; the frigate immediately fired a shot into the sloop of war—she then poured a broadside into the frigate. Here the action commenced, and continued about fifteen minutes, when the sloop of war ceased firing. The Commodore then gave orders for his men to desist.—The president remained near her all night, and next morning sent Captain——(I think it was Crayton) on board the Little Belt to offer any as- sistance they might require; the offered any assistance was politely refused by Captain Bingham, who said he he had no doubt of being able to reach Halifax in safe- ty, expressing, at the same time regret for what had happened, observing that it was a prevailing opinion on board his ship that the President must be a French frigate, and gave this as the reason why he fired into the President.

"The Little Belt lost in killed and wounded 30 men, and was very much injured in having many of her masts and spars shot away, besides several shots in her hull.

"Many entertain an opinion that the President was sent out to demand the man impressed from on board the merchant brig Spitfire. The unfortunate affair has no connection with any particular orders given to Commodore Rogers by any one, the Commodore having said that his orders were merely to proceed to his old station off New York. The Commodore's official communication had had not appeared at the time of our sailing; but how will he palliate his conduct in giving chase (which he acknowledges to have done from twelve at noon till nine in the evening) to an arm- ed vessel, he being under a neutral flag, and at peace with all the world."

directing a general enlistment of the citizens from the age of 10 to 45, and another proclamation of the lat- ter, stating the capture of three of their vessels by the Government of Monte Video, the substance of all which has already been published.

On Monday week, all the Brazil ships in the River Thames, in London, were seized by the Custom-house officers, on account of an informality produced by the late treaty with the Prince Regent, in respect to the place of their construction. They will in a few days be set at liberty, under an order from the Treasury, which we understand is now in preparation.

About 150 sail of merchantmen have arrived from Norway and the Baltic, with cargoes consisting of thirty thousand quarters of wheat, tar, hemp, &c. and with a quantity of timber, which by reaching the British port before to-morrow the 5th inst. when the increased duty takes place, will save to the importers £150,000.
